THOUSANDS ATTEND COX NOTIFICATION; NOMINEE ENDORSES WILSON'S LEAGUE PLAN

DEMOCRATS TAKE UP BATTLE GAUGE

DAYTON, O., August 7.—Governor James M. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidates for president and vice president, respectively, of the Democratic party, today marched at the head of the parade of delegations from all sections of the country, from the down section of the city to the fair grounds, where the notification exercises were held. They were cheered tumultuously.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 7.—National Democracy today took up the battle with its Republican opponents for America's greatest political prize, the presidency.

With today's formal notification of acceptance by Governor James M. Cox of the Democratic presidential nomination voted him at the San Francisco convention July 6, the national campaign was on between the two principal parties, except for similar ceremonies next Monday at Hyde Park, N. Y., for Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Democratic leaders, by thousands representing the party's leadership and rank and file, joined today in the ceremony of presenting their leader to the American electorate. All states, territories and possessions were represented in the day's program which culminated in Governor Cox's address of acceptance stating the Democratic case.

Dayton gave itself over to this, its last presidential notification.

All of today was in force for the campaign this afternoon at the Montgomery county fair grounds, while Cox and other states sent thousands upon by special trains, automobiles and other conveyances.

Dayton Gaily Decorated

Like city buildings and homes, the fair grounds tossed decorations of flags, bunting and banners, with gilt fringe and evergreen. Littered about the grounds of Governor Cox by thousands were on display. At the fair grounds, seats for about 50,000 were provided in the flag-tipped amphitheater and several auxiliary grandstands.

The speakers' platform, adjoining the amphitheater, was flanked by trees, giant palm trees, the judges stand, and a large covered stand with seats for the crowd which gathered for the day. None was out of earshot of the speakers, an electrical sound system having been installed along the farthest person in the crowd.

COUGHLIN BABY LIVES, SAYS CRANK

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 7.—Further important developments in the Coughlin kidnapping case were expected by the authorities today. The twenty-four hour period given the captors of the thirteen months old child by Augusto Pasquale, held as an accomplice in the kidnapping, for his return, expires at four o'clock this afternoon and unless he is restored to his parents, Pasquale, according to Major Lynn G. Adams, head of the state police, said he would tell all he knows.

"Tell them," he is quoted as saying, "that if they don't bring back the kid within 24 hours, I'll squeal. I can't stand this much longer."

Major Adams said the prisoner admitted he was the writer of "The Crank" letters and that he got $12,000 ransom money left by George H. Coughlin, father of the missing boy, at a lonely spot on the outskirts of Norristown. Pasquale also told the authorities, Adams said, that the child is alive and that he is being held in the vicinity of Philadelphia by a woman who has learned to love him and is caring for him tenderly. This woman is known to the police, but so far they have been unable to locate her. She is said to be a friend of a former associate of Pasquale.

Scores of federal agents, postal inspectors and local police continued their search today for the baby while Pasquale was put through another grilling at city hall. Despite his repeated denials, Major Adams declared he is convinced, "the Crank" was the actual abductor.

Harding Not Allowing G. O. P. Campaign Committee To Run Over Him Rough Shod

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright by Times Publishing Co.)
ARLINGTON, O., Aug. 6.—The issue here is still front porch or back platform. The party politicians and managers want Senator Harding to take the country from coast to coast. Senator Harding wants to stay here. And he has said "no" very emphatically with respect to the period between now and October 1st anyway. After that, there may be visits to various cities.

Early Rows in Evidence

But the usual early campaign dissensions are in evidence. No presidential contest would be complete without them. Parties chance national managers so often that with each new chairman comes a new perspective. Murmurs are heard here about the apathy of the Republican national committee on the subject of pilgrimage to Marion. It is represented by some, for instance, that the national committee hasn't arranged for enough decorations or banquets for the arrival of the delegation. The delegation cancelled its arrival on its part and its determination to rearrange the other day because it couldn't get excursion rates.

It is quite customary for the national committee, be it Republican or Democratic, to be taken over by the party for a time of confusion as well as confusion but this time the criticism seems to be accompanied by the notion that the national managers are as enthusiastic about their party campaign as the candidate is himself.

Harding is Decisive

Senator Harding has been impatient from every side to go out on the stump. First, Will Hays is reported to have urged a change, and then Harry M. Daugherty, Harding's personal manager, is represented as being anxious to have the candidate take an active part in the campaign outside of Marion. Entirely apart from the merits of the controversy, the error is that Senator Harding isn't serious in the campaign committee to run rough shod over him as is often the case if a candidate lets the national committee do it. It is this representation on his part and its determination to rearrange the other day because it couldn't get excursion rates.

Premiers To Discuss Military Aid For Troops Of Poland

WARSAW, August 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The Polish foreign office has sent a note to the allies and a special note to the United States on the actual political situation, it was learned today.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The special note on the actual political situation in Poland which the foreign office at Warsaw has dispatched to the American government has not been received, it was stated today at the state department.

State department officers still maintained silence as to yesterday's conference at the White House between President Wilson and Secretary Colby and Under-Secretary Davis.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—Premier Millerand will leave at 7:30 o'clock tonight for Hythe, England, where he will confer with Premier Lloyd George, relative to the Polish situation. Newspapers here declare that Marshal Foch will be present at the premier's conference.

Military aid for Poland, consisting of one or two divisions, each from France, Great Britain, Hungary, Rumania, Latvia and possibly other nations is one of the emergency measures to be discussed by the two premiers.

This plan, as well as other measures, has been recommended by the French and British missions at Warsaw. It has been pointed out that Hungary particularly, can send good cavalry into the field. All these divisions, it is understood, will be fully equipped and it has been proposed that these reinforcements take the field before Warsaw to defend the capital of Poland.

French official circles, according to the foreign office, consider the front line now shifted from Poland to Berlin, in view of the speech of Dr. Brüning, the German foreign minister in the Reichstag on Thursday. It is believed in French quarters, it was stated, that Germany is undertaking the reconstruction of German industries, such as the railroads, under an agreement with the Soviet government, but it was not thought that any treaty existed going beyond such cooperation.

The French military experts in Warsaw reported the military situation unchanged.

The Polish delegates empowered to negotiate peace were expected to reach

RIOTING RENEWED IN WEST FRANKFORT

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., August 7.—Sporadic rioting broke out again in West Frankfort today. Louis Carrari, 40 years old, was shot and he ten to death. This is the first known death since the rioting began Thursday night.

Carrari was dragged from his home by a crowd of rioters and killed while his wife was going for assistance. He was the father of five children. Two men are under arrest in connection with his death.

Musk tonight it was stated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Soviet Russia has followed up its successes against Poland with a thrust into southwestern Asia and its forces already are threatening the Persian capital of Teheran. This rather unexpected move by the Bolsheviks is believed by some officials and diplomats here to be directed against British and French domains in the Near East Asia.

Interpretations Not Disturbing Leagues Vital Principles, Favored By Nominee

(Editor's Note.—The text of Governor Cox's address formally accepting the nomination for president, on the Democratic ticket, will be found on Pages 4 and 5.)

DAYTON, O., August 7.—Peace for America and the world by this nation's entrance into the League of Nations with "interpretations" NOT disturbing its vital principle was pronounced today by Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic presidential standard bearer, as his paramount policy.

In his address here accepting the Democratic nomination, Governor Cox militantly championed the league as proposed by President Wilson, with interpretations insuring good faith and understanding, and denounced what he termed the dismemberment proposal from Senator Harding, his Republican opponent, for a separate peace with Germany.

League or no league, the Democratic nominee declared, is the issue between the two parties—"the supreme issue of the century," he said.

"The question is," Governor Cox declared, "whether we shall or shall NOT join in this practical and humane movement. President Wilson entered the league in our name. Senator Harding, as the Republican candidate for the presidency proposes in plain words that we remain out of it. As the Democratic candidate I favor going in."

First Duty Will Be Ratification

"The first duty of the new administration will be ratification of the treaty," Governor Cox said, predicting that friends of the league would rally to elect a senate with the requisite majority for ratification.

Governor Cox said the "interpretations" should state "our interpretation of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future." Assailing the Lodge reservations as emasculating, Governor Cox suggested two specific "interpretations," as outlined several months ago in a newspaper article. One declared America's continuance in the league should depend upon the league's use only as an agency for world peace; the other stated the understanding that this nation could not act within the constitution, declared unalterable by any treaty.

The door to other "interpretations"

ABANDONS SPECIAL PARAGRAPH

DAYTON, O., Aug. 7.—Governor Cox abandoned his plan to have an insert in his address that there would be no paragraph insert and that the speech as sent in advance to the press would stand.

No room for doubt was left as to the governor's position on the league as the pre-eminent political battleground. As on other subjects, he stated his position squarely.

"We are in a time which calls for straight thinking, straight talking and straight acting," he said, "It is no time for waffling."

In position, the league question led the candidate's address and to it he devoted three thousand words of the 10,000 odd total.

No Mention of Prohibition

The prohibition amendment and Volstead law were NOT specified in the address, but Governor Cox promised emphatically strict law enforcement.

"The constitution," he said, "is the license and limitation given to and placed upon the law making body. The legislative branch of government is subjected to the rule of the majority. The public official who fails to enforce the law is an enemy both to the constitution and to the American principle of majority rule. It would seem unnecessary for any candidate for the presidency to say that he does NOT intend to violate his oath of office. Any one who is false to that oath is more unworthy than the law violator himself."

"Morals cannot easily be produced by statute," Governor Cox continued, "passing to a plea against abuse of the writ of injunction."

Urged Suffrage Ratification

Regarding women's suffrage, Governor Cox urged ratification of the proposed constitutional amendment, declaring women "are entitled to the privilege of voting as a matter of right, and because they will be helpful in maintaining wholesome and patriotic policy."

His opposition—candidate, platform, leaders and congressional record—were flayed by Governor Cox in scathing terms throughout his long address. A "Senatorial oligarchy" led by Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, Governor Cox charged, selected Senator Harding to lead the Republicans and fastened "into the party platform the creed of bitterness and hate and the vacillating policy that possesses it." The Republican

DENVER STRIKERS VOTE TO RETURN TO THEIR POSTS

DENVER, COLO., August 7.—Striking tramway men at a meeting today voted to call off the strike which has caused rioting here the last two days. If the company would permit them to return to work in a body and send the strike breakers out of town, Wayne C. Williams, counsel for the union was instructed to confer with company officials and report to a meeting of the men at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 7.—Two hundred soldiers under Colonel C. C. Ballou arrived here early today from Fort Logan to maintain order just as leaders of the Tramwaymen's Union voted to recommend calling off the street car men's strike, which has been followed by two days of violence resulting in the death of three men and wounding of a dozen persons last night.

The tramwaymen were to meet at nine o'clock this morning to take a vote on the recommendation of the executive committee. Governor Shoup, in a statement at Colorado Springs, said the action of the union leaders would not serve to halt the arrival of troops. Five hundred more soldiers were under orders at Camp Carson to leave early today.

In a statement issued shortly after the announcement of the union leaders, Frederick W. Hill, general manager of the tramway company, announced that the striking carmen would be taken back but that there would be no working agreement with the union and the union would not be rechartered. The statement further declared that preference in filling vacancies would be given the strike breakers employed by the company to run cars.

Mob Repelled By Rifle Fire

The call for federal troops was issued last night when a mob attacked the East Denver car barns and was repelled with rifle fire. Three men were killed and a dozen persons, including women, girls and boys, were wounded. Several similar gatherings had been broken up earlier in the evening by the police with the aid of a thousand volunteers recruited from American Legion members.

The leader of the strike breakers at the Denver car barns declared that shooting there was caused by attacks of a mob on an automobile load of strike breakers who were arriving at the car barns. Rocks and bricks were hurled at the car and the mob to the car barns replied with rifle fire. Hundreds of persons in the neighborhood were attracted by the firing and four children, two girls and two boys, and a woman were among those hit by bullets.

JOHNSON SAYS HE HAS EVIDENCE

TACOMA, WASH., August 7.—Repeating his statement as to the existence of what he termed an organized system of smuggling Japanese into the United States, Representative Albert Johnson, chairman of the house committee on immigration and naturalization, today said he would submit evidence first to the departments of state and labor.

Within six hours of the issuance of his first statement on the subject, eight Japanese, he said, were taken from the liner Eastern Temple at Seattle in an attempt to enter the United States illegally, and two others escaped in a row boat. He said such incidents were proof that Japanese were illegally entering the country, but added the opinion that the Japanese government was ignorant of the routes used.

Watch For The Sunday Times

Few people have any idea of the amount of labor that is necessary to bring to them each evening a paper such as The Times. To many people, a newspaper brings up the idea of an editor, a reporter or two, a printer or two, someone to run a press, and that's about all. There was a time in the history of the Times, like in the history of most papers, when that conception was about right, but the newspaper business has changed, and today a progressive paper is a regular small manufacturing plant. To give the readers of the paper some idea of the daily work required to print the Times, some statistics will be given in Sunday's edition, together with pictures of the employees, and a general story of their various duties. You will probably be surprised when you see the number of regular employees.

At the same time there will be some interesting facts about

Portsmouth, as prepared by the Chamber of Commerce, and some interesting advertisements.

Moreover, tomorrow's edition will make one which might be sent with profit to friends in other cities, after the family has finished reading it. A limited number of extra copies also will be run.

Newspapers who wish any extra copies should get their orders in early.

KENTUCKY HOLDING PRIMARIES

LOUISVILLE, KY., August 7.—Kentucky held primaries today in seven of the eleven congressional districts to determine party standard bearers for the November elections. No state-wide primary was held in as much as no state officers are to be elected this year and the candidates for United States senator, long term, Richard P. Ernst, Republican, of Lexington, and J. C. W. Beckham, Democratic incumbent of Frankfort, are unopposed.

There were contests for the Democratic nomination for congress in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth districts, while Republicans contested in the first, fourth and ninth districts.

In all of the contests, issues have been minor, except in the race for the Democratic nomination for representative from the eighth district, where prohibition was the issue. Three candidates, Judge Ralph Gilbert, Shelby; Lieutenant Colonel Frank Ripley, Anderson; and George T. Davis, Casey, seek the nomination.

Gilbert stands for a strict enforcement of the Volstead act. Davis for its modification, while Ripley has been non-committal.

This district returned Congressman Swope, Republican, the winner in a special election last August, and it was the second time a Republican ever served the district in congress.

He stepped into the loop of a 2 inch rope, which was being wound up by the winches. The rope gave a violent tug, throwing McMurry to the floor of the boat. Before help could reach him the boat swung to the landing, and the force of the pull cut his leg off, just below the knee. He was then rushed to the hospital.

FINE TONIC FOR WOMEN

Is What This Lady Thinks About Cardui. It Made Her Well.

Springfield, Mo.—Mrs. Allice Fletcher, of this address, writes: "I cannot say too much to praise of Cardui. It has done so much for me. Shortly after my marriage, 14 years ago, I suffered terribly, with my back aching and my limbs pained me so bad. And also I had such awful bearing-down pains, and I became very weak and could not hardly do my work."

I went to my sister-in-law and she told me to get Cardui. So I took one bottle and it helped me so much. I got another bottle, and by the time I had taken the two bottles I was a well woman. I have never been troubled any more... I keep Cardui in my home... for I think it is a fine tonic for a woman raising a family.

I always take one or two bottles before and after my... for it strengthens me so, and has such good effects on my nervous system."

Weak women, worn out with the work and care of the home, need a tonic, strength-building medicine, like Cardui, the woman's tonic. NCB

Coal Fleet Passes

Three million bushels of "black diamonds," as common, ordinary coal has come to be known, passed down the Ohio river on the way to Cincinnati, Saturday.

Screen boats with 53 barges of West Virginia coal made up the midsummer fleet.

The big fleet caused a great deal of comment from on-lookers, as it made an imposing sight as it filled the whole expanse of the Ohio. The coal slides along on the bosom of an artificial wave that registered 4 1-2 feet and rising this morning. The wave was created by opening up river dams.

The Greenwell passed up Saturday morning for Pittsburgh from Cincinnati.

COX MILITANTLY CHAMPIONS WILSON'S LEAGUE POLICIES; FAVORS INTERPRETATIONS INSURING GOOD FAITH AND UNDERSTANDING

Prohibition Amendment And Volstead Law Not Mentioned In Cox Speech Of Acceptance

ASTON, O., August 7.—The following is the text of Governor Cox's address accepting the nomination for President on the Democratic ticket:

Chairman Robinson, and members of the Nominating Committee: The message which you bring from the great conference of progressive thought assembled under the formal auspices of the Democratic party inspires within me a pride and an appreciation which I cannot voice. At the same time I am mindful of the responsibility which this function now officially places upon me. As I measure my own limitations the task ahead of me should be approached with more than a feeling of diffidence if I were not strengthened and reassured by the faith which you have placed in me and the fidelity to conscience. It is not the difficult thing to know what we ought to do; the sense of right and wrong have been given with Divine equality. The mistakes of history are the result of weakness in the face of temptation. I thank God, therefore, that I take up the standard of Democracy as a free man, unfettered by promises and happy in the consciousness of unimpaired opportunity to render a service in the name of government that will hold for it the confidence which it deserves.

We Need Straight Thinking

We are in a time which calls for straight thinking, straight talking and straight acting. This is no time for wobbling. Never in all our history has more been done for government. Never was sacrifice more sublime. The most precious things of heart and home were given up in a spirit which guarantees the perpetuity of our institutions—if the faith is kept with those who served and suffered. The altar of our republic is strewn in blood and tears, and he who turns away from the tragedies and obligations of the war, not consecrated to a sense of honor and duty which resists every base suggestion of personal or political expediency, is unworthy of the esteem of his countrymen.

Democratic Platform Clean

The men and women who by expressed policy at the San Francisco convention charted our course in the open seas of the future sensed the spirit of the hour and planned it with clarity and courage. It is not necessary to read and reread the Democratic platform to know its meaning. It is a document clear in its analysis of conditions and plain in the pledge of conditions made to the public. It carries honesty of word and intent. Proud of the leadership and achievement of the party in war, Democracy faces unflinchingly the problems of peace. Indeed, its pronouncement has but to be read along with the platform framed by Republican leaders in order that a great political party. The exclusive question was how to avoid a rupture in the Republican organization. The country received with interest, to say the least, the announcement from Chicago, where the national convention was assembled, that a platform plank dealing with the subject of world peace had been drawn, leaving out the Lodge reservations, and yet remaining agreeable to all interests, meaning thereby, the Lodge reservations, the mild reservationists and the group of Republican senators that openly opposed the League of Nations in any form.

G. O. P. Platform Evasive

As the platform made no definite constitutional policy and was, in fact, so artfully phrased as to make almost any deduction possible, it passed through the convention with practical unanimity. Senator Johnson, however, whose opposition has been consistent and whose opposition to the League in any shape is well known, withheld his support of the platform, stating the morning of the platform, and announced definitely the policy that would be his, if elected.

The Republican candidate has spoken, and his utterance calls forth the following approval from Senator Johnson:

"Yesterday in his speech of acceptance Senator Harding unambiguously took his stand upon the paramount issue in this campaign—the League of Nations. The Republican party stands committed by its platform. Its standard-bearer has now avowed that platform. There can be no misunderstanding his words."

Minority Previews

Senator Harding, as the candidate of the party, and Senator Johnson as one of this question, and, as the latter expresses it, the Republican party is committed both by platform and by the candidate in his specification. The threatened revolt among the leaders of the party is averted, but the minority position as expressed in the senate prevails as that of the party. In short, principle, as avowed in support of the Lodge reservations, or of the so-called mild reservations, has been surrendered to expediency.

Senator Harding makes this new pledge of policy in behalf of his party: "I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign."

Means Separate Peace with Germany

This means but one thing—a separate peace with Germany.

"This would be the most disheartening event in civilization since the Russian made their separate peace with Germany," and infinitely more unworthy on our part than it was on that of the Russians. They were threatened with starvation and revolution and they sought their country. Our soldiers fought side by side with the Allies. So complete was the coalition of strength and purpose that General Such was their supreme command, and every soldier in the allied ranks, no matter what flag he followed, recognized him as his chief. We fought the war together, and now before the thing is through it is proposed to enter into a separate peace with Germany? In good faith we pledged our strength with our associates for the enforcement of terms upon offending powers, and now it is suggested that this be withdrawn. Suppose Germany, recognizing the first break in the Allies, proposes something we cannot accept. Does Senator Harding intend to send an army to Germany to press her to our terms? Certainly the allied army could not be expected to render aid. If, on the other hand, Germany should accept the chance we offered of breaking the bond, it would be for the express purpose of insuring a German-American alliance, recognizing that the Allies—in fact, no nation in good standing—would have anything to do with either of us.

This plan would not only be a piece of bungling diplomacy, but plain, unadorned dishonesty, as well.

No less an authority than Senator Lodge said, before the heat of recent controversy, that to make peace except in company with the Allies would "brand us eternally with dishonor and bring ruin to us."

And then after peace is made with Germany, Senator Harding would, he says, "hopelessly approach the nations of Europe and of the world, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the concentration of nations to a new relationship."

In short, America, refusing to enter the League of Nations (now already established by twenty-nine nations) and bearing and desiring the contempt of the world, would submit an entirely new project. This act would either be regarded as arrogant madness or attempted international blackmail.

Playing to All Classes

The plain truth is, that the Republican leaders, obsessed with a defeatism to win the presidential election, have attempted to satisfy too many divergent views. Inconsistencies, inevitable under the circumstances, rise to haunt them on every hand, and they find themselves arrayed in public thought at least, against a great principle. More than that, their conduct is opposed to idealism upon which their party prospered in other days.

Illustrating these observations by concrete facts, let it be remembered that those now inveighing against an interest in affairs outside of America, criticized President Wilson in unmeasured terms for not rescinding the invasion of Belgium in 1914. They term the League of Nations a military alliance, which, except for their opposition, would envelop our country, when, as a matter of truth, the subject of the League of Nations has claimed the best thought of America for years, and the League to Enforce Peace was preceded over by so distinguished a Republican as Ex-President Taft, who, before audiences in every section, advocated the principle and the plan of the present League. They charge experimentation, when we have as historical precedent the Monroe Doctrine, which is the very essence of Article X of the Versailles covenant. Skeptics viewed Monroe's mandate with alarm, predicting recurrent wars in defense of Central and South American states, whose guardians they alleged we need not be. And yet out a shot has been fired in almost a hundred years in preserving sovereign rights on this hemisphere. They hypocritically claim that the League of Nations will result in our boys being drawn into military service, but they fail to realize that every high school youngster in the land knows that on treaty can override our Constitution, which reserves to Congress, and to Congress alone, the power to declare war. They preach Americanism with a meaning of their own invention, and artfully appeal to a selfish and provincial spirit, forgetting that Lincoln fought a war over the purely moral question of slavery, and that McKinley broke the fetters of our boundary lines, rescued the freedom of Cuba, and carried the torch of American nationalism to the benighted Philippines. They lose memory of Garfield's prophecy that America, under the leadership of God, given opportunity, would by her moral leadership and co-operation become a Meadish among the nations of the earth.

Supreme Issues Before Us

These are fateful times. Organized government has a definite duty all over the world. The house of civilization is to be put in order. The supreme issue of the century is before us and the nation that lulls and delays is playing with fire. The finest impulses of humanity, rising above national lines, merely seek to make another horrible war impossible. Under the old order of international anarchy war came overnight, and the world was on fire before we knew it. It sickens our senses to think of another civil war one conflict into which modern science brought new forms of destruction in great guns, submarines, airplanes, and poison gases. It is no secret that our chemists had perfected, when the contest came to a precipitate close, gases so deadly that whole cities could be wiped out, armies destroyed, and the crews of battleships smothered. The public prints are filled with the opinions of military men that in future wars the method more effective than gases or bombs, will be the employment of the germs of diseases, carrying pestilence and destruction. Any nation prepared under these conditions, as Germany was equipped in 1914, could conquer the world in a year.

League Steps Such Horrors

It is planned now to make this impossible. A definite plan has been agreed upon. The League of Nations is in operation. A very important work, under its control just completed, was participated in by the Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of State under the Roosevelt administration. At a meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, February 11, an organizing committee of twelve of the most eminent jurists in the world was selected. The duty of this group was to devise a plan for the establishment of a permanent Court of International Justice, as a branch of the League. This assignment has been completed by unanimous action. This augurs well for world progress. The question is whether we shall or shall not join in this practical and humane movement. President Wilson, as our representative at the peace table, entered the League in our name, in so far as the executive authority permitted. Senator Harding, as the Republican candidate for the presidency, proposes in plain words that we remain out of it. As the Democratic candidate, I favor joining in it, as our representative. Senator Harding's plan of making a German-American peace, and then calling for a "new relationship among nations," assuming for the purpose of argument only, that the perfidious hand that dealt with Germany would possess the power or influence to draw twenty-nine nations away from a plan already at work, and induce them to renege every step and make a new beginning. This would entail our appointing another commission to assemble with those selected by the other powers. With the Versailles instrument discarded the whole subject of partitions and divisions of territory on new lines would be reopened. The difficulties in this regard, as any fair mind appreciates, would be greater than they were at the peace session, and we must not attempt to convince ourselves that they did not try the genius, patience, and diplomacy of statesmen at that time. History will say that that great as the Allied triumph in war, no less a victory was achieved at the peace table. The Republican proposal means dishonor, world confusion and delay. It would keep us in permanent contact with Germany, Russia, Turkey and Mexico. It would entail, in the ultimate, more real injury than the war itself. The Democratic position on the question, as expressed in the platform, is:

"We advocate immediate ratification of the Treaty without reservations which would impair its essential integrity, but do not oppose the acceptance of any reservations making clear, or more specific the obligations of the United States to the League as societies."

First Duty to Ratify It

The first duty of the new administration clearly will be ratification of the Treaty. The matter should be approached without thought of the objections of the past. The public verdict will have been rendered, and I am confident that the friends of world peace as it will be promoted by the League, will have in numbers the constitutional requisite to favorable senatorial action. The capious may say that our platform is vague and indefinite. Its meaning, in brief, is that we shall state our interpretation of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future. The point is that after the people shall have spoken, the League will be in the hands of its friends in the Senate, and a safe index as to what they will do is supplied by what reservations they have proposed in the past. Some months ago, in a contributed article to the New York Times, I expressed my own opinion of the situation as it then was. I reproduce it here:

Expresses His Opinion

"There can be no doubt but that some senators have been conspicuous in their desire to clarify the provisions of the Treaty. Two things apparently have disturbed them: First, they wanted to make sure that the League was not to be an alliance, and that its basic purpose was peace and not controversy. Second, they wanted the other powers signing the instrument to understand our constitutional limitations beyond which the treaty-making power cannot go. Dangling with these two questions in order, it has always seemed to me that the interpretation of the function of the League might have been stated in these words:

"In giving its assent to this treaty, the Senate has in mind the fact that the League of Nations which it embodies was devised for the sole purpose of maintaining peace and comity among the nations of the earth and preventing the recurrence of such destructive conflicts as that through which the world has just passed. The cooperation of the United States with the League and its continuance as a member thereof, will naturally depend upon the adherence of the League to that fundamental purpose."

"Such a declaration would at least express the view of the United States and justify the course which our nation would unquestionably follow if the League purposed to do anything more than to be a simpler matter to provide against any misunderstanding in the future and at the same time to meet the objections of those who believe that we might be incurring controversy over our constitutional rights by making a senatorial addition to words something like these:

"It will of course be understood that in carrying out the purpose of the League, the government of the United States must at all times act in strict harmony with the terms and intent of the United States Constitution which cannot in any way be altered by the treaty-making power."

No Bar to Helpful Additions

Unquestioned friends of the League have made other proposals. Our platform clearly says no bar against additions that will be helpful, but it speaks in firm resolution to stand against anything that disturbs the vital principle. We hear it said that interpretations are unnecessary. That may be true, but they will, at least be reassuring to many of our citizens who feel that in signing the treaty, there should be no mental reservations that are not expressed in plain words, as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future. The point is that after the people shall have spoken, the League will be in the hands of its friends in the Senate, and a safe index as to what they will do is supplied by what reservations they have proposed in the past. Some months ago, in a contributed article to the New York Times, I expressed my own opinion of the situation as it then was. I reproduce it here:

force drastic conditions. Happily, the voters of the republic, under our system of government, can remedy that situation, and I have faith that they will, at the election this fall. The organized government will be enabled to combine impulse and facility in the making of better world conditions. The agencies of exchange will automatically adjust themselves to the opportunities of commercial freedom. New life and renewed hope will hold of every nation. Marking our press a resolute shoulder to the task of readjustment, and a new era will have dawned upon the earth.

Domestic Problems to Settle

We have domestic problems to be settled. They are most pressing. Many conditions growing out of the war, not and should not continue. The work of readjustment will call for our best energy, ingenuity, unselfishness and devotion to the idea that it is the general welfare we must promote. One of the first things to be done is the repeal of war taxes. The people of America into the world war projected our people into an unparalleled financial emergency, which was faced with a determination to make every sacrifice necessary to victory. Billions of dollars subscribed by patriotic citizens were instantly placed at the disposal of the government, and other billions were gladly paid into the treasury through many forms of taxation. It has been said by current taxes more than one-third of the expense of the great war in the history of mankind, is a reflection on the high sense of national duty with which we of America view the obligations of this generation. Immediately following the armistice, measures to modify onerous and annoying taxation should have been taken and the Republican congress is, through many forms of taxation, to have said for almost two years has exclusively held the power to ameliorate this condition, has not made a step effort or passed a single law to relieve the American people a load of war taxation that cannot be tolerated in a time of peace. Federal taxation must be heavily reduced, and it will be done at once, if a Democratic administration is chosen in November. Without hampering essential administrative departments, by the elimination of others and strict economies everywhere, national taxes can be reduced in excess of two billion dollars yearly. Annoying consumption taxes, once willingly borne, now unjustified should be repealed. The losses from war-made fortunes, those of producers and those of distributors, should be met by unfair prizes may be able to carry their present load, but taxes on the earnings of the wage-earner, of the skilled professional man, of the agricultural producer and of the small tradesman should be sharply modified. I believe that a better form of taxation than the so-called excess profits tax may be found and I suggest a real one, probably one to one and one-half percent on the total business of every going concern. It is to be understood that the term "business" as used does

Cox Endorses Wilson Plan

When stand, generally, was scored by the governor as reactionary, and, on the large question, he said the party's immediate bent was to the irreconcilable hostility of Senator Johnson, of California. The Republican congress, the governor asserted, failed to pass a constructive law or to reduce war taxes.

Millions in campaign funds have been gathered for the reactionary cause," the governor charged, depicting election of a new administration "under corrupt auspices" and demanding publicity for "the plain truth" regarding all contributions and disbursements. The Democrats, he added, would not attempt "to compete by dollars."

He warned the country against "conning devices backed by unlimited prodigious expenditures—to confuse and lure."

Unfettered By Promises

Governor Cox said he took up the Democratic standard "a free man, unfettered by promises."

"We want a change," he said, "from the old world of yesterday where international intrigue made people mere pawns on the chessboard of war. We want a change from the old industrial world where the man who toiled was assured of a 'full dinner pail' as his only lot and portion. We stand at the forks of the road. One leads to high citizenship, a freer expression of the individual and a fuller life for all. The other leads to reaction, the rule of the few over the many and the restriction of the average man's chance to grow upward. But I have abiding faith that the pitfalls will be avoided and the right road chosen."

The leaders opposed to Democracy promise to put the country "back to normal." This can only mean the so-called normal of former reactionary administrations.

"Our view is toward the sunrise of tomorrow. The opposition stands in the skyline of the setting sun, looking backward, at the old days of reaction."

General Tribute To Wilson

A graceful tribute to President Wilson was paid by Governor Cox, when, during the Republican platform for absence of "a line that breathes emotion of pride" in the nation's war achievement, he said that while soldiers fell in the trenches Mr. Wilson "was broken in the enormous labor of his office."

Yings Separate Peace

The Republican proposal for a separate peace, Governor Cox declared, would be "the most disheartening event in civilization since the Russians made their separate peace with Germany." Citing difficulties in the plan, Governor Cox said that it accomplished "No nation in good standing would have anything to do with either of us."

"This plan would not only be a piece of bungling diplomacy, but plain, unadulterated dishonesty, as well," he said, inveigling against any scheme without associated powers.

"This act would either be regarded as a madman's or attempted international terrorism," he added.

Dismissing domestic questions, Governor Cox denounced profiteering at length and promised that profiteers should "suffer the penalty of the criminal law."

Fair Returns For Both Capital and Labor

Fair returns for both capital and labor were advocated, the nominee also approving development of both "into large units—without injury to the public interest." Collective bargaining by labor through its own representatives was approved by the governor, who added:

"We should NOT by law abridge a man's right either to labor or quit his employment. However, neither labor nor capital should take action that would put in jeopardy the public welfare."

"We need a definite and precise statement of policy as to what business men and workmen may do by way of combination and collective action. The law is now so nebulous that it almost turns upon the predictions of the judge or jury. The rules of business should be made more certain so that on a stable basis men may move in confidence."

Disputes between capital and labor are inevitable, Governor Cox said, and public opinion settles prolonged strikes. Declaring that "public opinion should determine in America," he said the government should occupy an impartial position, protect lives and property, and, possibly at times, inquire into facts of a tie-up.

"But facts and NOT conclusions," he said, "should be submitted."

Agricultural subjects formed another extensive feature of the candidate's speech, many expedients for agricultural development being advocated, including reduction of tenancy, increased production, co-operative selling as well as purchasing by farmers, establishment of municipal markets and "modern state rural school codes," and increased acreage by irrigation development. He also declared for government regulation of cold storage and a time limit on storage products.

Advocate More Home Owners

Advocating more home owners, Governor Cox said that under Democratic rule "the prosperity of the country had been widely diffused."

Praising American youth for its service, Governor Cox declared that the nation owed a debt to those who died and their dependents and to the wounded, who should be trained and rehabilitated. Also, he said, "we must realize that considerable compensation is due those—who lost much by the break in their material hopes and aspirations."

Mexican Situation Improving

The Mexican situation, the governor stated, has been "trying our patience for years," but now begins to show signs of improvement.

"Not the least of the things that have contributed to it," he continued, "is a realization by the people of that country that we have neither lust for their domain, nor disposition to disturb their sovereign rights."

On the railroad question, Governor Cox advocated giving "a thorough test to private ownership," under government regulation, the latter now being accepted, he said. Financial credit for the roads, he stated, should be provided. Discrediting of government operation of the carriers was deplored as "unfair" and "insincere."

A pledge for "heavy" and immediate reduction of federal taxation was made by the nominee, who said that, with economy, $2,000,000,000 could be "lopped off." He advocated repeal of "annoying consumption taxes" and said incomes of wage earners, agricultural producers, and married, professional and small business men should be "sharply modified." He suggested, in lieu of excess profits taxes, "a small tax, probably of one or 1 1/2 percent on the total business of every going concern."

He also urged "making the holders of hidden wealth pay their share (of taxes) with those whose property is in sight."

Advocate Budget System

Advocating reform of federal agencies and activities, including establishment of a budget system, the governor said the government could be run on $4,000,000,000 annually including sinking fund and national debt interest. Disarmament provisions of the League of Nations, he added, constitute "an appealing fundamental" and its loss a surety of armament burdens.

The Federal Reserve Act was commended at length as the greatest factor in America's war efforts next to personal sacrifices of the people. The law is a Democratic achievement, he said, enacted "against the protests of the bitter Republican stand-patters."

In its development he recommended establishing foreign banks in trade centers and urged Americans to guard the law, declaring it should be "kept from the hands of those who have never been its friends."

Repeat of war laws restricting freedom of speech and assembly and liberty of the press was advocated, together with Americanization of alien residents and extension of education work "without encroachment by the federal government on local control."

Conservation of children by prevention of child labor, adequate pay for government employees, short shift for anarchistic agitators and development of waterway transportation were other affirmative policies the governor enunciated.

"I accept the nomination of our party," he said in conclusion, "obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples and hopeful that by trust in Him the way will be shown for helpful service."

fairly well from Shadow Lane, Long Branch, in 1916.

But it will take considerable courage to withstand the tactics of the political managers who will soon be coming to Marion with postulate stories about the activity of the rival candidate.

Politicians are really afraid Cox is possessed of a good deal of an initiative impulse, because Cox announces a big speaking tour, many Republicans want Harding to do likewise.

The viewpoint here, however, is that Senator Harding can conserve his energy and give the issues of the campaign more thoughtful consideration in this haven of peace and quiet than he could on a morning train with crowds at every crossing and cheers at all hours of the night with handshaking and baby kissing and all the other obligations of campaigning which a candidate fulfills lest he offend his prospective supporters.

Talking of Speaking Trip

Senator Harding has put his foot down hard on the whole business, but the campaign managers in conference in New York and Chicago are talking of breaking trips.

The Harding headquarters answered a good deal of the talk by issuing today a list of engagements for front porch addresses for the remainder of August and a part of September. Certainly there will be no extensive tour until after October 1, definite plans for the period thereafter will not be made until early in September when a survey of the effect of the first Cox trip will have been made.

Premiers To Discuss Aid

News of the soviet army's advance south and west of the Caspian sea was conveyed today in official dispatches from John L. Caldwell, American minister to Persia, and the American consul at Tabriz. The minister asked permission of the state department to remove the American legation from Teheran, in view of the preparations of the Persian government to evacuate the capital, while the consul asked authority to move from Tabriz. Both requests were granted.

Official observers conceded that the opening of a new theatre of warfare by the Bolsheviks had complicated an already grave situation in Europe and the Near East. They also were of the opinion that this latest development would serve to hasten a decision by the allied governments as to general measures to be taken to check the soviet menace.

Polish Resistance Stiffens

LONDON, August 7.—Russian Bolshevik armies hammering the Polish lines northeast and east of Warsaw seem to have encountered stern resistance. With the exception of the area around Brest-Litovsk, east of the Polish capital no new advances by Soviet troops have been reported, and even there they have been limited by the desperate fighting of the Poles.

Polish forces have been forced to retire from Terespol, about four miles west of Brest-Litovsk, and have lost Murametz, about five miles to the south. Thus the Bolsheviks have gained a foothold on the west bank of the Bug river in this region, but it is probable the further progress will be very slow, as permanent forts erected months ago to defend the city must be stormed if the Soviet legions are to gain ground there.

Northwest of Brest-Litovsk, along the Bug river, the Polish have launched vigorous counter-attacks and have succeeded in driving back across the river Bolshevik detachments which had succeeded in reaching the left bank of the stream. Further north along the battle front, toward the east Prussian frontier, a great battle is being fought, but no details of the outcome have been given.

At Myszyniec, about five miles from the German boundary, the Poles are well entrenched and appear to be holding their own in spite of savage assaults against their positions. In the southern sectors of the front, fighting of a serious nature is going on, and the Poles seem to be gaining ground at some points.

Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand of Great Britain and France, will meet at Hythe tomorrow. It is expected by that time the Soviet government will have answered a telegram that Mr. Kaueff, one of the chiefs of the Soviet delegation in this city sent to Moscow after a long conference with Premier Lloyd George and other government officials yesterday. It seems certain there will not be an immediate break in the negotiations between the allies and the Soviet government, and it is believed the French and British premiers may have before them proposals from Moscow which may assist them in dealing with the serious situation confronting Poland.

Reels Attack General Wrangel

LONDON, August 7.—The Bolsheviks have been an offensive against General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevik leader in southern Russia who in his recent campaign advanced some dis-

Cox Unfettered By Midnight Combinations Or Plutocratic Cabals, Says Senator Robinson

DAYTON, O., Aug. 7.—Hailed as a candidate in whose selection "neither midnight combinations nor plutocratic cabals were instrumental," Governor James M. Cox was formally notified today by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, chairman of the notification committee, that he had been chosen by the Democratic National Convention as the party's presidential nominee.

The convention reached its decision through the exercise of untrammelled judgment by the delegates without intervention or coercion from political bosses," the senator said. "The honor and responsibility attending this nomination came to you because your position respecting campaign issues is known to be in harmony with the platform adopted and because the record of your public service demonstrates your leadership."

Senator Robinson outlined the progressive legislative measures in Ohio which he said Governor Cox had secured against opposition. Of the Old Budget system, included in the list, he said:

"The measure has proved so satisfactory that it has been adopted by the legislatures of many states and is being introduced for similar systems of coordinating national income and expenditures."

"The Democratic platform was 'clear and unmistakable' in its meaning as to the League of Nations, the senator said, while the Republican platform on the subject was 'beyond the power of the human mind to analyze or understand' and susceptible of various constructions."

"We believe," he continued, "that the treaty should be ratified and that this country should cooperate with other governments which have entered the League of Nations for the preservation of world peace."

"The Republican nominee has declared for defeat of the treaty, and the rejection of the League. He has said that it is no longer a compromise, but a surrender. It is proposed to restore peace by act of Congress instead of by treaty and to leave unsolved all the vexed and difficult questions growing out of the war. It is proposed to place Germany on an equal footing with our government in the negotiation of the treaty, to leave her at liberty to select war just, demands and to attempt to impose upon us unreasonable conditions."

At another point Senator Robinson said it was reported by the press that the Republican nominees had agreed in conference to base their campaign platform on the necessity of wresting "personal control" from the "barbaric" government. He implied that other features of the Chicago platform are to be subordinated to the false issue based on prejudice and misrepresentation that President Wilson performs the role of dictator."

Since the President's trip to Paris it has been the policy of the Republican leaders to "dispute him as an usurper," the senator declared, adding that "this unjust campaign" was continued "in spite of the fact that for almost a year and a half the President has been too ill to perform, without great suffering, the imperative duties of his office."

"It is proposed that the ongoing process carried on in the Senate shall be made the chief manifestation of the Republican nominees of their fitness for office," Senator Robinson said. "If the Senate as a body had performed its duty half as promptly as the President did his, the world long ago would have been at peace."

Vote for Henry Ruel, Republican candidate for the nomination of Treasurer of Scioto County at the August 10 primaries. He will appreciate your support.

One of the largest delegations was from Marion, Senator Harding's home. The conductor's fare counter, it was said, showed 1,124 on the special train, which was jammed to the platform. Several hundred more were reported to have come by automobile. They carried large placards in their hands with a picture of a rooster and labelled "Cox Sure." The Trojans Club of Chicago, brought Governor Cox a special certificate of honorary membership by Orin C. Williams, vice president of the club. The Chicagoans wore badges declaring "Chicago for Cox."

Cincinnati and Indianapolis also had large delegations, numbering over the thousand mark, members stated. Detroit sent 60 and Fort Wayne 330, their pilgrims stated.

PIKETON FAIR CLOSES

Your nerves must be in perfect condition — free from pressure — or you cannot remain well.

If the spine is right the man is right.

If your life is worth anything your health is worth a few minutes investigation of this science.

If You Are Unwell and Have Tried Everything Else, With No Lasting Results, Try

Chiropractic, Mechano-Therapy and Hydro-Therapy

(Chiropractic (Ki-ro-prak-tik) is the first aid to nature, and the only exact science that removes the cause of disease. Other systems are still laboring with effects of disease and treating symptoms.

The brain generates the nerve stimulus or electricity which runs your body, and from there it is conducted to the various organs, glands, muscles and parts by the nerves. When the flow of nerve force from the brain to any organ or tissue is unrestricted, perfect health in that part of the body is assured. But when an impingement of a nerve takes place, the flow of impulse is restricted, allowing only a small part of nature's life-giving force to pass through the parts supplied.

These parts being thus deprived of their normal amount of nerve stimulus, begin to weaken and are unable to function normally. The cells break down, resistance gives way, and disease is the result.

The competent Chiropractor with trained fingers locates the subluxation in the spine, and in a skillful manner adjusts them to normal position, removing the pressure from the nerves, thus permitting nature to send a full flow of pulsating, vitalizing, life-giving impulses to affected organs and tissues, thus removing the cause of disease.

Mechano-Therapy is the use of manual, physical or mechanical measures for therapeutic purposes.

Hydro-Therapy is the use of water for therapeutic purposes.

Cleanliness is Godliness.

Ladies Patients — In no line of disease do we have better success than in the various diseases and ailments which affect womanhood. Benefits are promptly shown without the annoyance which they are subjected to under other treatments. The proper nerve supply being restored, normal functions are quickly reestablished.

By investigation many things are made clear that would otherwise be hidden in darkness.

The recuperative powers of a patient determines the time required to regain health.

Our charges for adjustments are moderate — much less than you'd expect to pay.

A splendid crowd was in attendance at the Piketon fair Friday, the closing day of the big exhibition, which was a huge success from every standpoint. The exhibits of live stock and other departments, including the agricultural hall, were bigger than ever before and the racing program each day furnished plenty of fine sport, while the attendance was all that could be desired and exceeded the fondest expectations of the management.

A check of the receipts discloses that close to 20,000 visitors were entertained during the three days.

The shows and other attractions on the midway were liberally patronized while the other concessions, including the refreshment stands, did a land office business.

As usual the races were the chief feature Friday when three events were pulled off and there was a good crowd in the grand stand to see the stoppers.

The main event was the 2:20 pace for a purse of $300, which required five heats to decide and which finally went to Prince R., owned and driven by Porter Haynes, Chillicothe, who won the second and fourth heats and finished in second place in the others.

Jay Billikin, owned and driven by Swisshelm, Hillsboro, captured the 2:27 trot in straight heats with West Virginia, owned and driven by Elmer Hatfield, Ironton, as the runner up.

The third event, the 2:24 pace for a purse of $300 went four heats and the long end of the money was copped when Dan Ashland, a fast nag, owned by Brooks Capper, Ironton, and driven by Weaver, stepped out in front in the last two heats after finishing in second place in the first two heats, which were won by A. R. D., A. B. Fisher's bay gelding, and then quit.

MISS DOLLY WISE

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—As the city is improving its streets and alleys can't there be something done with the street water? It is so bad, and there is such an odor from the gutters it is enough to make a lot of sickness.

A PROPERTY OWNER.
Call at the city building and tell the service director about it or phone 13.

Dear Dolly—I am engaged to a young man who wishes to give me presents for our future home. Is that all right? I am a little girl.

ENGAGED GIRL.
It is all right to accept presents from your fiancé.

Perkins, Ohio—Dear Dolly—Would you please tell me through your paper, what makes eggs float in water glass? I allowed one part water glass to ten parts hard water and they float and they still float. I have preserved several years but this is my first experience of this kind.

O. H. O.
State eggs will float. If you will use one part water to one part water glass and use strictly fresh eggs they will float. We always hold the water and let it cool before adding the water glass.

Dear Dolly—Please print a recipe for pickling peaches.

THANK YOU.
Put five pounds of sugar to a pint of vinegar, add one tablespoon of salt and two sticks of cinnamon to a preserving kettle and boil 10 minutes. Weigh seven pounds of peaches. Peel, only as many at a time as will fill one can, and the peeled peaches into the hot syrup and cook until tender but firm. Do not boil until they lose their shape. Take peaches out of syrup and put them into cans that are set in hot water. Proceed until all are cooked, then cook syrup down for ten minutes, pour hot over the peaches. Screw on covers and set away in a cool place.

Dear Dolly—Why are some rain drops large and some small?

AN OBSERVER.
The nearer the rain cloud is to the earth the larger the drops.

Dear Dolly—Will you please print a recipe for pickled crabapples, crabapple preserves, and one for sweet cucumber pickles.

A RECIPE.
Pickled Crabapples—Do not peel the apples, but wipe each one separately. Weigh and allow 4-2 pounds of sugar to every seven pounds of apples. Put the sugar and fruit in the kettle and add just enough water to cover the lower layer of fruit. Bring slowly to a boil and cook until the apples can be pierced with a fork. Have boiling water in a pan of vinegar that has been mixed with cinnamon, cloves and mace. Add the speed vinegar to the boiling fruit five minutes before the apples are ready to take out. Remove the apples, spread on platters, boil the syrup and vinegar until thick, pack the apples in jars, and fill these to overflowing with boiling liquid.

SHOULD A WOMAN TELL?

WITH ALICE LAKE

and an receptionally capable cast for the answer.

Directed by John E. Snee

Manuel Rangel

What is it that a woman will not tell? See "Alice Lake" at the Eastland Theatre tonight. A gripping story of a fisher girl and a real love. Also other features.

No. often are we given over to superstitions concerning the dramatic merits of the artist, but the picture which the Eastland Theatre will present tonight for the first time in this city is one of the most gripping, appealing and emotion-inspiring productions which have been shown here for some time. This picture is "Should a Woman Tell?" featuring Alice Lake with Jack Mulhall and an all star Metro cast.

As Meta Marston, the fisher girl whose conscience bade her bare to the man she loved the secret of her youth and whose worldly wisdom counseled the severity of silence, Alice Lake has given a performance even more capable than her portrayal of Nora Drake with Bert Lytell in "Lombardi, Ltd."

"Should a Woman Tell?" tells the management's personal stamp of approval which means a guaranteed production. Other features on the program include a South Island comedy and a new issue of the Pathé Review. Shows starting promptly each night at 8, 7:30 and 9 P. M. Admission adults 25 cents. Children 10 cents.

RALPH D. COLE.

Ten Reasons Why Col. Ralph D. Cole Should be Elected Governor of Ohio

1. Because he is eminently qualified from any angle you may view him.
2. His life, experience and work on the farm has given him not only a keen interest in, but a greater devotion to agriculture—the basic industry of all industries—and its urgent needs.
3. He is an able lawyer. The executive of a great state should have a knowledge of the theory and practice of law.
4. He is an expert law-maker, having been actively identified for ten years with two great law-making bodies.
5. He has the talent, temperament and instinct of a statesman, evidence of which is found in the Cole revenue law fathered by him when under thirty years of age.
6. He has a practical knowledge of all the political machinery of government.
7. He has a broad and practical knowledge of the business interests of the State, evidence of which is seen in the large number of business organizations he is invited to address.

ber of business organizations he is invited to address.

8. He is 100 per cent plus American. He admired and loved our great men from his boyhood days. Of the great and saintly McKinley soon after his cruel assassination, in a public address, he said: "About the grave of McKinley this Nation should register a vow to Almighty God that this diabolical species of treason and treachery called anarchy shall be uprooted from our government and hurled back to the land of its birth. We welcome the worthy from foreign shores, but we shall not be the dumping ground for the profligate from the haunts of European vices."

9. He is a keen and close student of the great problems of the day.

10. He is a man, every inch a man—a true, royal, courageous, high-minded gentleman.

What Is Needed In Galena School District

Total amount of money needed for all purposes for the schools of Galena School District, 1920-21, $382.55.

Total amount of money from the 3 mill levy, by action of the Board of Education, that can be raised in the district is $700.00.

The school district is short the difference $307.55.

The district may receive from: (a) The state 1.8 mill fund (1.4 of each teacher's salary) $1167.50. (b) The county 1 mill fund (1.4 of each teacher's salary) $633.75. Total $1801.25. (c) The district may receive from state 1.8 and county 1 mill levy on basis of aggregate daily attendance (Small Sum). (d) The irreducible debt in February, 1921, $27.35.

The district is still short $323.65. The law says that in such cases as the above the people shall vote an additional 3 mill levy, after which the state will furnish the balance of the funds for school purposes.

The additional 3 mill levy when voted will produce $265.00.

State aid from the reserve fund will furnish the balance of the required amount of money, which is about approximately $2181.25.

Should the people vote down the 3 mill levy the district will lose the state aid, and the Board of Education may be obliged to bond the district for sufficient money to run the schools, and the tax payers will have to pay the bill, with interest on the same, in other words, it is a refusal to accept the state's generous offer. If money enough cannot be raised through the board, the Board of Education may be obliged to close certain schools and send the children to some other school or schools. Do you want that done, if that should become necessary, in your district? If not, vote "Yes" on the tax levy August 10.

Your attention is being called to facts pertaining to the schools which is not a matter of choice; for they are in the laws of the state, and all laws will be enforced. I believe that all the people of your district want good schools and will, therefore, do all they can to make such schools possible, and they will be impossible without the money. Of course you will vote on August 10 for the 3 mill levy. It is for the sake of the boys and girls, the future citizens of this country.

We hereby certify that the above statements and figures are approximately correct.

August 14.—Solvay vs. Drew.

In a game made quite irksome because of the patched up appearance of the Industrial tail enders, the Excelsiors helped to stage the complete comeback of James Bannon, annihilated the Irving Drows by the score of 10 to 3, last evening, before an audience of fans that had more fun than a cage of tamed monkeys in a side show. The Drows showed up with six men, but after running thru the crowd like a woman at a remnant counter, acting manager Floyd Smith succeeded in scraping together an outfit that went through the scuffle making motions like a team even if they did make a sorry appearance against the shiftless opposition presented by the Excelsiors, who still have their eye on third place, even if their feet are planted in the fourth rung of the pennant ladder.

The Excelsiors had little trouble in winning and could, had it been made necessary, run up a much larger total. As it was Empire Yeager was compelled to call the game at the conclusion of the sixth inning, much to the delight of the fans who stood the ordeal with great fortitude and legitimate enthusiasm.

Mr. Evans, the collegiate, hurried for the Excelsiors and did about as he pleased. He allowed a hit now and then, just to show his opponents that he was not a shyness. When it was necessary to put on the breaks.

The feature of the game—and we are serious now—was the all round work of James Bannon at third for the Excelsiors. His fielding was glib edge-hand, sure, being easily for him. He accepted every one of his chances and seemed eager for more. At the bat he had a perfect average, two hits, both left field doubles, and a couple of walks. Mr. Bannon played ball in the days long ago, but his arms have not lost their cunning, nor his arms their strength. He may have showed up a bit in his all round ability but at that he can give many a player cards and spikes and heat 'em to the finish line.

Floyd Smith essayed the task of pitching, and he was quite ably received by Mr. Hale, who ran the risk of spilling a brand new suit of pure worsted in order to play. Mr. Hale, of the Solvays, played left while Mr. Wails of the N. & W. was out in right, both garbed in their civies. Smith was not much of a pitcher, nor was Mike Mowery who succeeded him a total engine. Smith was fouled up for seven hits, while Mowery yielded a half dozen. One of the rights secured off Smith was a direct blow from the bat of catcher Lowry, who went around on high gear, due to some sky-rocket throwing on the part of the Drows fielders. Lowry had a field day at bat, getting three solid raps, while Monk, Bannon, Hengs and Doney helped themselves to a couple.

The Excelsiors won the game in the second on a walk to Bannon. Lowry's sacrifice and hits by Hengs, Doney, Evans and Lowry, a triple by Monk and Bannon's double added one in the third. Lowry smashed a homer in the fourth. In the fifth Hengs' double and Doney's single counted for one run. Two were made in the sixth on Lowry's double, single by Monk and Bannon's second two play shot.

The Drows made one in the third. This singled after two runs were out, stole second and came home on Scott Mowery's single to left. Two scored in the fourth when Evans doubled, Cooper singled and Mike Mowery doubled.

IS TRIS SPEAKER GOING TO WIN WHERE OTHERS FAILED?

With the race as terrific as it is in the American league, picking a winner is out of the question, but the way Tris Speaker has been leading his Indians along the track at the head of the field, in spite of all opposition, is raising the question as to whether or not he is going to be the man who will at last give Cleveland a pennant. The Cleveland team leads the league in batting and fielding, and Speaker himself leads the league in batting, with an average above .400.

GIANTS STAGING ANNUAL RUSH

How the Giants, who hung around last place until the second week in July, have managed to rush forward and get within striking distance of first place before the second week in August is one of the interesting chapters of the baseball year.
There have been many angles to their sudden improvement.
One was the return from the hospital to third base of Frank Frisch, a kid just out of college who has as much power as a spice factory. Frisch is not yet a Heineke Droll, but he is quite a ball player and has the winning spirit.
Another reason was the acquisition of Dave Bancroft for short in place of Art Fletcher. Bannan has played a hit better for New York than he ever did for Philadelphia.
Another reason was the return to health of Art Nehf and Rube Benton, two good southpaws who were afflicted strangely with stomach trouble most of the season, but who recovered at about the same time.

George Kelly's general improvement has helped quite a bit.
And still another reason is Johnny Evers.
John joined the Giants when they started on their first western tour in May. Up to that time McGraw's club had won eight games and lost 11. They looked hopeless and felt that way.
Evers did nothing but watch for quite a while. He didn't want to butt in until he had won the confidence of all the players.
This took him about a month. Then he began telling the boys where they had been making mistakes and how to correct them. Johnny is an exceedingly smart chap. He and McGraw make a great team in running a club. Between them they have pulled the Giants together and got the machine hitting on all cylinders. Without Evers it is doubtful if McGraw would have his club playing at anything like the pace it has been setting the past month.

BIRDS OF PREY REAST

FROM time to time it has been sought, through these columns, to impress upon the public that there were numberless promotion schemes, fraudulent and rotten, devised for no other purpose than to get easy money, swindling and robbing right and left. Particular stress was ever laid upon the fact that it was persons unfamiliar with investments and financial matters, that were sought as victims. And before these yielded to the expectancy of dazzling returns held out, they should consult some bank or individual of experience as to the soundness of the project.

It is to be feared, in the light of a very recent experience in the city that scant heed was paid to these warnings and the advice. For but a matter of a few short weeks ago there appeared in the city a glib tongued stock salesman, who represented an alleged Pittsburgh industry of mammoth proportions, who operated chiefly among women and those widows. Through the representation that the concern would pay extraordinary large interest on preferred stock and fabulous dividends on common he sold stock to amount in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars. Scarcely had he cleared the city when the news came that the president and secretary of the concern had been arrested for misappropriation of funds and now the stockholders are forming an association to see what they can salvage out of their investment, while many a widow bemoans the peril to all her fortune.

The experience is not unusual. It is being repeated every day, somewhere in the United States.

Certainly, this one instance does not prove that there are no sound investments to be made in private enterprises, and handsome dividends returned, but that is not the point. Because of the fact that there are thousands of such enterprises—though their earning capacity is generally exaggerated—dishonest undertakings find themselves in rich fields, it is so easy to deceive with false statements and fictitious profits to come.

Take this case at hand by way of illumination. Nine-tenths of the shop talk of the salesman's stock talk was what other companies in his line had made, one-tenth in adroitly insinuating what his company was going to make. Basically his proposition was wrong, though the person approached generally would not know that, because he was promising eight per cent on the investment, because that meant 13 per cent on the share of the company in the subscription, because he got 25 per cent himself of the amount of every sale he made. Industries that can show that earning capacity do not ordinarily need to give "a bonus" of common stock for every share of preferred bought at par, when dividends are paid also on the latter. Big money is always ready to gubbe up that sort of an offering.

What then are persons with some investment money to do. In the first place it is advisable to consult a banker. Then there are the building associations and many government securities, offering many absolute securities, with good interest.

NEITHER CONSIDERED NOR CONSIDERING

POLITICS, at least that part of it that has for its primary object the election of men to office and that's the heart of it, is a queer game.

The people who supposedly do the electing are queerer still. Let us illustrate. There are three Republican candidates for governor, Davis, Cole and McCulloch. In common acceptance the first two are in the race, the last was distanced at the start.

But why? Davis has been mayor of Cleveland, but made no especially brilliant record as such. His strength lies in the fact that he is assumed to be vet, though he hasn't said so loud enough himself to be heard by the rank and file of the party. Cole was a congressman, but did not rise above the average. He was, however, a colonel in the overseas service and is credited with having acquitted himself quite gallantly in the great war. It is rumored around that the Anti-Saloon League regards him favorably and that will give a big count of votes. Neither of these two notably concerned himself much about state affairs, but played up other issues. On the other hand, McCulloch is a congressman, much as congressmen go, but he seems to understand he is running for governor and he elected the job of running the state will be on his hands and he has advanced vigorously some altogether approvable ideas as to how he will administer it.

But it is said he is making no headway and speaking without any particular concern in the matter, he doesn't seem to be. Why? Well, the politicians are all against him and the people will not heed him; that is to say the politicians are for themselves, but the people are not for themselves. They are letting the politicians attend to their business and may be, taking away from them the fruits thereof.

No assertion is made that Davis and Cole would not either make as good a governor as McCulloch, any more than he would not make as good as either of them. The point is, the two are not running on that issue, while the one is, but the politicians, divided between Davis and Cole have easily eliminated McCulloch and therefore he isn't to have a look in.

Strange, isn't it, when you go right down to the bottom of why officials and what they should be?

THE DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

LINDSEY SAVES TWO YOUNG HEARTS FROM SUFFERING

Spent the morning in close contact with Mr. Reade, and then he asked me to lunch with him, as a sort of farewell affair, which I did. He is nicer than words can ever tell, and so many of the world's ills, which I feel above all else in a man. We had a jolly feed, and he talked to me about my work, and my future until I felt quite like some of the other great journalists have felt like when they first made good. He instructed me as to the best way to get my ideas over here to him from Europe, and we finally arranged definitely for next year. I am now a chartered cartoonist for "The Evening Leader" for the next twelve months at least, and if he had had his way it would have been for longer. This, I thought, was, however, for a girl like myself can never tell where she will be, exactly, from one year to another. Besides I hate being bound down indefinitely to anyone, or anything! I do feel happy at the way things are shaping themselves for me. It's wonderful.

From my office (sounds so important) I called on Brissy, and commiserated him for the whole afternoon. Instructed him to meet me at Dorry's studio and to arrive early and stay late.

It was then my sweet-said duty to take leave of my pals on the "Leader," which I did. They were all so cordial and seemed genuinely sorry to have me leave, even for so short a time. It made me feel most important.

Got over to Dorry's at about three, and found her busy—doing nothing. She looked rather pale and was not at all her old self, which made me suspicious at once. One gets to know the earmarks of love after a while!

That wretched girl is the only one of all of us who has determined not to be hurt—not at any price. She is bound to stand alone and not to be led to the altar, what though both she and he are in love. Now I do feel sorry for her, for she is going to be a second Aunt Cecelia. Well Dorry is that kind of girl, and I don't suppose anything will ever change her. If I love her!

She is so self-sufficient she fairly makes me sick—with envy! Talked to me as evenly as though she was not going through all the torments of the damned, and even broke into girlish laughter on one or two occasions. It was heart-breaking to see her, especially as she still had all the marks of recent tears round her pretty eyes. Girls are such idiots after all!

She told me that she envies me my trip tremendously, that such a trip would be the very thing for her at this particular moment. Just as she was talking the telephone rang and she went over to answer it. I saw her face go quite pale when she heard the voice at the other end, but she never turned a hair. Simply said in a quiet voice that Miss Dorothy Wilson was not at home, nor would be for several weeks, etc. It was mystifying in the extreme, until—until that foolish girl rushed up to me, after hanging up the receiver, and said in a shaky voice, "Hold on, Lindy dear: hold on to me now, tight as you can, for if you don't I'll take up that receiver and he won't leave for India—ever!"

I knew then what it was all about. Knowing my Dorry and her obstinacy I decided then and then to take things into my own hands, and after a few moments I discovered his name and profession (engineering); also that he is about to leave for foreign shores, broken-hearted. I then took a terrible headache and asked Dorry for some powder, which she did not have, but offered to run out and fetch. I begged her to do so, and as soon as she was fairly gone I danced over to the receiver, took it down, and in a clear voice asked for Columbia 9230.

When I heard a masculine voice on the other end I asked sweetly if that were Mr. Arthur Stanton, and followed him by a quick sketch of Dorry, her red eyes, and her deep dejection. I ended up with an earnest plea for Mr. Stanton to rush over here and knock the obstinate girl on the head, if necessary, for she was prepared to suffer rather than confess her love, and allow herself to be married! There was tremendous relief in Mr. Stanton's voice at my news, and at the end he actually laughed as he assured me that he had felt all along that that was just what Dorry needed, force! My, what a thrilling situation for Dorry, or any other girl. I did envy her as I hung up the receiver, and only just in time, for she appeared one second afterwards, bearing my medicine in her hand.

Twenty minutes afterwards Brissy arrived and we had a reunion. And shortly after that, just as I lifted and snarled for other regions, was

NATHAN L. MILLER

Nathan L. Miller, the choice of New York organization Republicans for governor of the Empire State, is a Syracuse lawyer whose career shows steady advancement in his chosen profession.

From the time he was admitted to the bar, in 1898, Miller became a close student of politics and affairs of government. His first excursion into the political arena came when he was elected school commissioner of Cortland county, N. Y., in 1901. After his reelection in 1906 he refused a third term and devoted himself to a growing law practice. He was state comptroller in 1902-1903, during which time he received first-hand information about the financial affairs of his state. A short time after he became a supreme court justice and was later elevated to the post of associate judge of the court of appeals, the highest state tribunal.

Justice Miller was born at Solon, N. Y., in 1858, the son of a farmer. As a youth he attended Groton academy and Cortland normal school. After his graduation from the state academy in 1877 he taught school for three years and then took up the study of law.

Miller was a prominent figure at the recent national Republican convention at Chicago. He made the nomination speech for Herbert Hoover for president.

BILLY WHISKER

When Billy heard Hans say that he did not wait for any more, but raised up on his hind feet, Fritz tried his best to hold him back, but he might as well have tried to hold the wind, and Billy, feeling the tug at his reins, gave a jump that toppled Fritz over backwards out of the cart. He gave one more jump and landed with all his might and main against poor, round Hans, and as his enemy went down Billy jumped on him and ran up one side of him and down the other side. Poor Hans got up and clasped both piggish hands on his stomach.

"A thousand lightnings yet again!" he exclaimed as he looked sorrowfully at his print in the dust. Hans had been butted that time for Billy's mother; now Billy whirled and came back to give Hans one for himself, but this time Hans was too quick for him and dodged behind a tree so hard that it stunned him, and before the fiery tempered goat could make up his mind what had happened to him, Caspar came running up and grabbed him by the horns. Billy could have jerked away from Caspar, but he felt that the boy was now the best friend he had, and he did not want to hurt him, so he let Caspar pat him on his sleek sides and climb into the cart belted

Life's Common Things

The things of every day are all so sweet—
 The morning meadows wet with dew;
 The dance of daisies in the noon; the blue
 Of far-off hills where twilight shadows lie;
 The night, with all its tender mystery of sound
 And silence, and God's starry sky!
 Oh, life—the whole of life—is far too fleet.

The things of every day are all so sweet—
 The common things of life are all so dear—
 The waking in the warm half-gloom
 To find again the old familiar room;
 The scents and sighs and sounds that never tire;
 The homely work, the plans, the lift of baby's laugh;
 The cradle of the open fire;
 The waiting, then the footsteps coming near;
 The opening door, your handclasp—and your kiss—
 Is Heaven not, after all, the Now and here?

The common things of life are all so dear.

—Alice L. Allen.

That's Different

The case looked black against the prisoner, who was charged with loitering suspiciously at the railway station. Presently the magistrate said sternly: "This lady says you tried to speak to her at the railway station."

"It was a mistake," pleaded the man in the dock. "I was looking for my wife's room where whom I've never seen but who had been described to me as a handsome young lady, with golden hair, well-cut features, fine complexion, perfect figure, beautifully dressed, and—"

With a clearing blush the principal witness against him interrupted his flow of eloquence.

"I don't wish to prosecute the gentleman," she said to the magistrate. "anyone might have made the same mistake."—Tit-Bits.

New-York - Day-By-Day

BY G. C. MCINTIRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The types to be seen at a yacht race represent the essence of social exclusiveness. Long, sleek, black, blue, green, summer suits, with narrow lapels, and high collars, and little wrist watch, and a little and partially married men.

It seems to be a casual observer that a man or woman may enter the social circles without having acquired efficiency in yachting. They want the weather, the ocean and the high powered yachts. A yawn means it has been all this stuff before. The "yaggy"—which even includes the ocean.

A good way to sneak through the barriers is to refer to Sir Thomas Lipton as "Tommy." That means that every body fairly oozes from every pore. Mrs. Twombly-Twombly meets Mr. Lipton and carelessly remarks that she has just bought six Rolls-Royces for the children. The little dears are so afraid in hot weather.

Van who has a furtive eye out to the tailor's collector comes back with some empty hats and the sun slips behind a cloud to smile. Then the sun slips on her face and she throws a sly, sly, sly look at the collector as he hurries for a scandalous conviction as a yacht varanda.

There is a stampede among the Wags in the office to recover the stars. In yachting circles when a lady loses a ship, she demands that the finder kiss her. They think of these stately innovations right out of their own heads.

There isn't one who would say "yawning a yacht." About one in every twelve does. But who is there to say that one owns a yacht? And the names of the yachts. There's some in those names boys. Among them: "Zodiac," "Neptune," "Scott," "Breeze," "Marina" and "Puck," and a spanking squall, topped and tailed.

Every yacht dock is cluttered up with Spanish servants who know how to climb wine. The roll of the passengers is not always due to the waves, but it is great fun to watch them. Truly one half the world lives little about the other half. I don't appear yacht owning by wearing a sailor suit. But it didn't work. I don't feel supercilious glances. They know I shouldn't do that. Although as a matter of fact I have a cash who owns a pair of "white duck trousers."

Broadway bootleggers openly sell business on the streets, those days well dressed young men who live like the hoppers in the pre-war days, approach you brazenly and require if they may supply your needs for the evening. If your lips are carrying a fight load you indicate the needs and wait up a side street for the hotel. They even solicit you the telephone. An actor told me it is often a day of being called on the phone in one day by ambitious students who quoted prices on eye, Scotch and Canadian whisky is reported to be selling at $5 a quart. Gin of standard brand is procurable at $10 a quart. A few months ago the price was $30.

Living in Brooklyn produces strange results. A man ran up to a policeman during a lumber yard fire and pointed to the smoldering remains of his small frame house adjacent to the lumber yard cried: "And my wife's going to have a good dinner for a lot!"

"Well," said the cop, turning on his heel, "it's well cooked now, all right, all right!"

False Price

An old man on his death-bed, in making his will, said to the attorney: "And to each employee who has been with me twenty years or more I bequeath $10,000."

"That is certainly very generous," said the lawyer.

"No, not at all. You see, none of them has been with me that long, but it will look pretty good in the papers, don't you think?" said the sick man, hopefully.

Oh!

The train was pulling into the station, and as the passengers crowded to get off the hotel man walked up and down calling: "King George, sir? King George?" Coming up to an old gentleman from the country, he said, looking down calling: "King George, sir? King George, sir?"

"No, sir," replied the old man; "you're mistaken. I'm just plain Bill McCarthy."

Biblical Information

The Lookout prints the following information about the Bible: "The Bible contains 3,565,450 letters, 510,697 words, 31,175 verses, 1,183 chapters, 66 books. The longest chapter is Psalm 119, and the shortest is Psalm 117. This is also the middle chapter. The middle verse, however, is Psalm 118:8. The longest name is in Isaiah chapter 8."

COX MILITANTLY CHAMPIONS WILSON'S LEAGUE PROGRAM

Interpretations Not Disturbing Leagues Vital Principles, Favored By Nominee

GALLEY ONE LEAD ydgp DHT

DAYTON, O., August 7.—Peace for America and the world by this nation's entrance into the League of Nations with "interpretations" NOT disturbing its vital principle was pronounced today by Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic presidential standard bearer, as his paramount policy.

In his address here accepting the Democratic nomination, Governor Cox militantly championed the league as proposed by President Wilson, with interpretations insuring good faith and understanding, and denounced what he termed the dishonorable proposal from Senator Harding, his Republican opponent, for "a separate peace with Germany."

League or no league, the Democratic nominee declared, is the issue between the two parties. "The supreme issue of the century," he said.

"The question is, 'Governor Cox declared,' whether we shall or shall NOT join in this practical and humane movement. President Wilson entered the league in our name. Senator Harding, as the Republican candidate for the presidency proposes to plant words that we remain out of it. As the Democratic candidate I favor going in."

First Duty Will Be Ratification
The first duty of the new administration will be ratification of the treaty," Governor Cox said, predicting that friends of the league would rally

ABANDONS SPECIAL PARAGRAPH

DAYTON, O., Aug. 7.—Governor Cox abandoned his plan to have an insert to his address. He announced early today that that there would be no paragraph insert and that the speech as sent in advance to the press would stand.

to elect a senate with the requisite majority for ratification.

Governor Cox said the "interpretations" should state "four interpretations of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future." Assailing the Lodge reservations as emasculating, Governor Cox suggested two specific "interpretations," as outlined several months ago in a newspaper article. One declared America's continuance in the league should depend upon the league's use only as an agency for world peace; the other stated the understanding that this nation could act only within the constitution, declared unalterable by any treaty.

"The door to other 'interpretations' is closed," he said.

Watch For The Sunday Times

Few people have an idea of the amount of labor that is necessary to bring to them each evening a paper such as The Times. To many people, a newspaper brings up the idea of an editor, a reporter or two, a printer or two, someone to run a press, and that's about all. There was a time in the history of The Times, like in the history of most papers, when that conception was about right, but the newspaper business has changed, until today a progressive paper is

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Soviet Russia has followed up its successes against Poland with a thrust into southwestern Asia and its forces already are threatening the Persian capital of Tehran. This rather unexpected move by the Bolsheviks is believed by some officials and diplomats here to be directed against British and French domain in the Near East Asia.

News of the Soviet army's advance south and west of the Caspian sea was conveyed today in official dispatches from John L. Caldwell, American minister to Persia, and the American consul at Teheran. The minister asked permission of the state department to remove the American legation from Teheran, in view of the preparations of the Persian government to evacuate the capital, while the consul asked authority to move from Tabriz. Both requests were granted.

Official observers conceded that the opening of a new theatre of warfare by the Bolsheviks had complicated an already grave situation in Europe and the Near East. They also were of the opinion that this latest development would serve to hasten a decision by the allied governments as to general measures to be taken to check the Soviet menace.

PREMERS TO CONFER

PARIS, Aug. 7.—Premier Millerand will leave at 7:30 o'clock tonight for Hythe, England, where he will confer with Premier Lloyd George, relative to the Polish situation. Newspapers here declare that Marshal Foch will be present at the premiers' conference.

Military aid for Poland, consisting of one or two divisions each from France, Great Britain, Hungary, Rumania, Latvia and possibly other nations is one of the emergency measures to be discussed by the two premiers.

This plan, as well as other measures, has been recommended by the French and British missions at Warsaw. It has been pointed out that Hungary particularly, can send good cavalry into the field. All these divisions, it is understood, will be fully equipped and it has been proposed that these reinforcements take the field before Warsaw to defend the capital of Poland.

French official circles, according to the foreign office, consider the front line now shifted from Poland to Berlin, in view of the speech of Dr. Brüning, the German foreign minister in the Reichstag on Thursday. It is believed in French quarters, it was stated, that Germany is undertaking the reconstruction of German industries, such as the railroads, under an agreement with the Soviet government, but it was not thought that any treaty existed going beyond such cooperation.

NOTIFICATION CEREMONIES IN DAYTON TODAY

DAYTON, O., Aug. 7.—National Democracy today took up the battle gauge with its Republican opponents for America's greatest political prize, the presidency.

With today's formal notification of and acceptance by Governor James M. Cox of the Democratic presidential nomination voted him at the San Francisco convention July 4, the national campaign was on between the two dominant parties, except for similar ceremonies held Monday at Hyde Park, N. Y., for Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Democratic legions, by thousands representing the party's leadership and rank and file, joined today in the ceremony of presenting their leader to the American electorate. All states, territories and possessions were represented in the day's program, which culminated in Governor Cox's address of acceptance stating the Democratic cause.

Dayton gave itself over to this, its first presidential notification.

A half holiday was in force for the ceremony this afternoon at the Mountgomery county fair grounds, while Ohio and other states sent thousands more by special trains, automobiles and other conveyances.

Like city buildings and homes, the fair grounds tossed decorations of flags, bunting and banners, with shields and evergreen. Lithographed pictures of Governor Cox by thousands were on display. At the fair grounds, seats for about 10,000 were provided in the flag-leeked amphitheatre and special auxiliary grandstands. The speakers' rostrum, adjoining the race course flanked with trees, giants in their ages, was the judges stand today almost concealed under swaths of red, white and blue. The brown dirt race track and oval enclosure, together with grassy paddock plots at either end of the amphitheatre were set aside for the crowd which gathered here today. None was out of earshot of the speakers, an electrical sound amplifying device having been installed to carry the Democratic battle cry beyond the farthest person in the grounds.

Delegations March Through Streets

Marching delegations swept through the streets, with blaring bands, long before the hour, 1 o'clock, set for the formal parade to the fair grounds, for

TROOPS ARE CALLED OUT

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 7.—Two hundred soldiers under Colonel C. C. Ballou arrived here early today from Fort Logan to maintain order just as leaders of the Teamwork's Union voted to recommend calling off the street car men's strike, which has been followed by two days of violence resulting in the death of three men and wounding of a dozen persons last night.

The teamworkmen were to meet at 10 o'clock this morning to take a vote on the recommendation of the executive committee, Governor Shoup, in a statement at Colorado Springs, said the action of the union leaders would not serve to halt the arrival of troops. Five hundred more soldiers were under orders at Camp Funston to leave early today.

In a statement issued shortly after the announcement of the union leaders, Frederick W. Hill, general manager of the tramway company, announced that the striking carmen would be taken back but that there would be no working agreement with the union and the union would not be recognized. The statement further declares that preference in filling vacancies would be given the strikers' breakers employed by the company to run cars.

Mob Repelled By Rifle Fire
The call for federal troops was issued last night when a mob attacked the East Denver car barn and was repelled with rifle fire. Three men were killed and a dozen persons, including women, girls and boys, were wounded. Several stadium gatherings had been broken up earlier in the evening by the police with the assistance of a thousand volunteers recruited

KENTUCKY HOLDING PRIMARIES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 7.—Kentucky held primaries today in seven of the eleven congressional districts to determine party standard bearers for the November elections. No state-wide primary was held in as much as no state officers are to be elected this year and the candidates for United States senator, long term, Richard P. Ernst, Republican, of Lexington, and J. C. W. Beckham, Democratic incumbent of Frankfort, are unopposed.

There were contests for the Democratic nomination for congress in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth districts, while Republicans contested in the first, fourth and ninth districts.

In all of the contests, issues have been minor, except in the race for the Democratic nomination for representative from the eighth district, where prohibition was the issue. Three candidates, Judge Ralph Gilbert, Shelby; Lieutenant Colonel Frank Rippy, Anderson, and George T. Davis, Casey, seek the nomination.

Gilbert stands for a strict enforcement of the Volstead act. Davis for its modification, while Rippy has been non-committal.

This district returned Congressman Swope, Republican, the winner in a special election last August, and it was the second time a Republican ever served the district in congress.

COUGHLIN BABY LIVES, SAYS CRANK

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 7.—Further important developments in the Coughlin kidnapping case were expected by the authorities today. The twenty-four hour period given the captors of the thirteen months old child by Augusto Pasquale, held as a ransom in the kidnapping, for his return, expires at four o'clock this afternoon and unless he is restored to his parents, Pasquale, according to Major Lynn G. Adams, head of the state police, said he would tell all he knows. "Tell them," he is quoted as saying, "that if they don't bring back the kid within 24 hours, I'll squeal. I can't stand this much longer."

Major Adams said the prisoner admitted he was the writer of "the crank" letters and that he got $12,000 ransom money left by George H. Coughlin, father of the missing boy, at a lonely spot on the outskirts of Norristown. Pasquale also told the authorities, Adams said, that the child is alive and that he is being held in the vicinity of Philadelphia by a woman who has learned to love him and is caring for him tenderly. This woman is known to the police, but so far they have been unable to locate her. She is said to be a friend of a former associate of Pasquale.

Scores of federal agents, postal inspectors and local police continued their search today for the baby while Pasquale was put through another

OPENING STOCKS

NEW YORK, August 7.—Speculation was uncertain and business light at the opening of the stock market today. Variations were fractional for most part. The bullish impulse which was so marked yesterday in special stocks was lacking, but on the other hand the bear pressure was slight. Bethlehem, Republic, Crucible, Mexican Petroleum and Utah Copper were lower, while Reading, Baltimore and Ohio, American International, Baldwin and cotton oil advanced. New York, Chicago and St. Louis which rumors say is to be taken over by Delaware and Lackawanna open with 8 points higher with 33, while Lackawanna improved 6 1/2 to 24 1/2.

In a game made quite irksome because of the patched up appearance of the Industrial tall centers, the Excelsiors helped to stage the complete comeback of James Bannon, annihilating the Drews by the score of 10 to 3, last evening, before an audience of fans that had more fun than a cage of trained monkeys in a side show. The Drews showed up with but six men, but after romancing thru the crowd like a woman at a remnant counter, acting manager Floyd Smith succeeded in scraping together an outfit that went through the strenuous making motions like a team even if they did make a sorry appearance against the stiff opposition presented by the Excelsiors, who still have their eye on third place, even if their feet are planted in the fourth rung of the pennant ladder. The Excelsiors had little trouble in winning and could, had it been necessary, run up a much larger total. As it was Empire Yeager was compelled to call the game at the conclusion of the sixth inning, much to the delight of the fans who stood the ordeal with great fortitude and heroic heroism. Mr. Evans, the collegiate, hurried for the Excelsiors and did about as he pleased. He allowed a hit now and then, just to show his opponents that he was not a shylock. When it was necessary to put on the breaks. The feature of the game—and we are serious now—was the all round work of James Bannon at third. For the Excelsiors, this fielding was gill edge-hard smashes being easy for him. He accepted every one of his chances and seemed eager for more. At the bat he had a perfect average, two hits, both left field doubles, and a couple of walks. Mr. Bannon played half in the days long ago, but his eyes have not lost their cunning, nor his arms their strength. He may have slumped up a bit in his all round ability but at that he can give many a player range and speed and beat 'em to the finish line. Floyd Smith essayed the task of pitching, and he was quite ably relieved by Mr. Hite, who ran the risk of squalling a brand new suit of pure worsted in order to play. Mr. Cole, of the Solways, played left while Mr. Waits of the N. & W. was out in right, both gained in their duties. Smith was not much of a puzzle, nor was Mike Mowery who succeeded him a total stranger. Smith was touched up for seven hits, while Mowery yielded a half dozen. One of the clouds secured off Smith was a circuit blow from the bat of catcher Lowry, who went around on high gear, due to some sky-rocket throwing on the part of the Drew fielders. Lowry had a field day at last, getting three solid raps while Monk, Bannon, Henge, and Donley helped themselves to a couple. The Excelsiors won the game in the second on a walk to Bannon. Lowry sacrificed and hits by Henge, Donley, Evans and Lowry, a triple by Monk and Bannon's double added one in the third. Lowry smashed a home run in the fourth. In the fifth Henge's double and Donley's single counted for one run. Two were made in the sixth on Mowery's double single by Monk and Bannon's second base fly shot. The Drews made one in the third. Hite singled after two men were out, stole second and came home on Scott Mowery's single to left. Two scored in the fourth when Evans began to play for true. Ketch singled, Smith flied to second, Waits doubled, Cooper singled and Mike Mowery doubled. The score:

IS TRIS SPEAKER GOING TO WIN WHERE OTHERS FAILED?

With the race as torrid as it is in the American league, picking a winner is out of the question, but the way Tris Speaker has been leading his Indians along the track at the head of the field, in spite of all opposition, is raising the question as to whether or not he is going to be the man who will at last give Cleveland a pennant. The Cleveland team leads the league in batting and fielding, and Speaker himself leads the league in batting, with an average above .400.

GIANTS STAGING ANNUAL RUSH

How the Giants, who hung around last place until the second week in July, have managed to rush forward and get within striking distance of first place before the second week in August is one of the interesting chapters of the baseball year. There have been many angles to their sudden improvement. One was the return from the hospital to third base of Frank Frisch. He did just out of college who has as much pep as a spiced factory. Frisch is not yet a Helms Grub, but he is quite a ball player and has the winning spirit. Another reason was the acquisition of Dave Hunter for short in place of Art Fletcher. Hunter has fielded and hit better for New York than he ever did for Philadelphia. Another reason was the return to health of Art Shiff and Babe Denton. Two good southpaws who were afflicted strangely with stomach trouble most of the season, but who recovered at about the same time. George Kelly's general improvement has helped quite a bit. And still another reason is Johnny Evers. John joined the Giants when they started on their first western tour in May. Up to that time McGraw's club had won eight games and lost 11. They looked hopeless and felt that way. Evers did nothing but watch for quite a while. He didn't want to butt in until he had won the confidence of all the players. This took him about a month. Then he began telling the boys where they had been making mistakes and how to correct them. Johnny is an exceedingly smart chap. He and McGraw make a great team in running a club. Between them they have pulled the Giants together and got the machine hitting on all cylinders. Without Evers it is doubtful if McGraw would have his club playing at anything like the gait it has been setting the past month.

Matty Off For Arizona

Christy Mathewson, veteran baseball player and the idol of every baseball fan in the United States, has gone to Arizona for his health. "The Sox" is pitching his greatest game against the white man's most dreaded enemy, tuberculosis. It is said that both of "Matty's" lungs are affected and that the disease is spreading. Christy shows his usual nerve and decides to believe that he is honest.

Coaching Cause Of Matty's Breakdown

Of all the Giants none are as close to Matty as Larry Doyle. Larry is the last survivor on McGraw's team of the old days when McGraw, Bowerman, Wilde, McGinnis, Bresnahan, DeWitt, Dahlen, Seymour and other famous ones reigned for McGraw.

Until Matty turned in his uniform a little over a month ago and went to Saranac Lake to fight the white plague he and Larry stuck together like glue. So if there is any Giant who knows why Matty broke down Larry should be the man.

Larry has a theory on it. He is not positive his explanation is correct but it sounds plausible. "I believe," says Larry, "coaching brought on Matty's illness. In the days when he was a great pitcher he never used his voice much. He especially did no shouting. When he became a regular fixture on our coaching lines he tried to do with his voice what he used to accomplish with his arm and head. His shouting strained the chords of his bronchial tube. This made him an easy victim for the disease which killed his brother Hank because the aggravated condition of his bronchial tubes undermined his whole constitution."

Games Draw Record Crowd

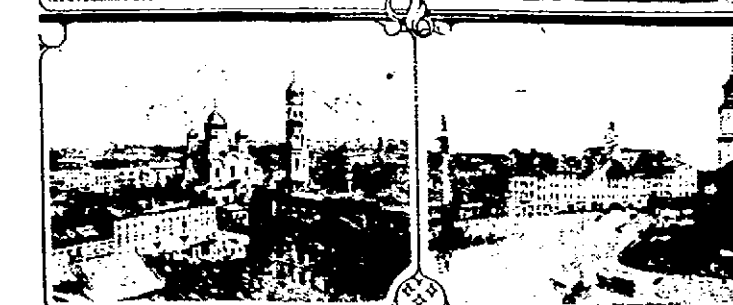

In four games in Chicago the White Sox and Yanks drew 120,000 fans. And to think that a year or two ago many fans were chiding about the game having run its course, and was dying a natural death.

There is not a team in the country no matter how small or large but what will make money this season.

Reds Doing Well In East

So far these jocular Reds have won unusually well on this trip. But the 6 out of the first 10 games played in the East. If they had played the game they lost in the ninth to the place! The pitchers are delirious on our coaching lines he tried to do

BIRDS OF PREY FEAST

FROM time to time it has been sought, through these columns, to impress upon the public that there were numberless promotion schemes, fraudulent and rotten, devised for no other purpose than to get easy money, swindling and robbing right and left. Particular stress was ever laid upon the fact that it was persons unfamiliar with investments and financial matters, that were caught as victims. And before these yielded to the expectancy of dazzling returns held out, they should consult some bank or individual of experience as to the soundness of the project.

It is to be feared, in the light of a very recent experience in the city that scant heed was paid to these warnings and the advice. For but a matter of a few short weeks ago there appeared in the city a glib tongued stock salesman, who represented an alleged Pittsburgh industry of mammoth proportions, who operated chiefly among women and those widows. Through the representation that the concern would pay extraordinary large interest on preferred stock and fabulous dividends on common he sold stock to amount in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars. Scarcely had he cleared the city when the news came that the president and secretary of the concern had been arrested for misappropriation of funds and now the stockholders are forming an association to see what they can salvage out of their investment, while many a widow laments the peril to all her fortune.

The experience is not unusual. It is being repeated every day, somewhere in the United States.

Certainly, this one instance does not prove that there are no sound investments to be made in private enterprises, and handsome dividends returned, but that is not the point. Because of the fact that there are thousands of such enterprises—though their earning capacity is generally exaggerated—dishonest undertakings find themselves in rich fields, it is so easy to deceive with false statements and fictitious profits to come.

Take this case at hand by way of illustration. Nine-tenths of the shop talk of the salesman's stock talk was what other companies in his line had made, one-tenth in adroitly insinuating what his company was going to make. Basically his proposition was wrong, though the person approached generally would not know that; because he was promising eight per cent on the investment, because that meant 13 per cent on the share of the company in the subscription, because he got 25 per cent himself of the amount of every sale he made. Industries that can show that earning capacity do not ordinarily need to give "a bonus" of common stock for every share of preferred bought at par, when dividends are paid also on the latter. Big money is always ready to gobble up that sort of an offering.

What then are persons with some investment money to do. In the first place it is advisable to consult a banker. Then there are the building associations and many government securities, offering many absolute securities, with good interest.

NEITHER CONSIDERED NOR CONSIDERING

POLITICS, at least that part of it that has for its primary object the election of men to office and that's the left of it, is a queer game.

The people who supposedly do the electing are queerer still. Let us illustrate. There are three Republican candidates for governor, Davis, Cole and McCulloch. In common acceptance the first two are in the race, the last was distanced at the start.

But why? Davis has been mayor of Cleveland, but made no especially brilliant record as such. His strength lies in the fact that he is assumed to be wet, though he hasn't said so loud enough himself to be heard by the rank and file of the party. Cole was a congressman, but did not rise above the average. He was, however, a colonel in the overseas service and is credited with having acquitted himself quite gallantly in the great war. It is pointed out around that the Anti-Saloon League regards him favorably and that will give a big count of votes. Neither of these two notably concerned himself much about state affairs, but played up other issues. On the other hand, McCulloch is a congressman, much as congressmen go, but he seems to understand he is running for governor and if elected the job of running the state will be on his hands and he has advanced vigorously some altogether agreeable ideas as to how he will administer it.

But it is said he is making no headway and speaking without any particular concern in the matter, he doesn't seem to be. Why? Well, the politicians are all against him and the people will not heed him; that is to say the politicians are for themselves, but the people are not for themselves. They are letting the politicians attend to their business and, may be, taking away from them the fruits thereof.

No assertion is made that Davis and Cole would not either make as good a governor as McCulloch, any more than he would not make as good as either of them. The point is, the two are not running on that issue, while the one is, but the politicians, divided between Davis and Cole, have coolly eliminated McCulloch and therefore he isn't to have a look in.

Strange, isn't it, when you go right down to the bottom of why officials and what they should be?

The DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

LINDSEY SAVES TWO YOUNG DEBTS FROM SUFFERING.

Spent the morning in close confab with Mr. Lindsey, and then he asked me to lunch with him, as a sort of farewell affair, which I did. He is never then words can ever tell, and so much of the worldish, which is what I like about all else in a man. We had a jolly feed, and he talked to me about my work, and my future, and I felt quite like some of the other great journalists have felt like when they first made good. He instructed me as to the best way to get my ideas over here to him from Europe, and we finally arranged definitely for next year. I am now a chartered correspondent for "The Evening Leader" for the next twelve months at least, and if he had had his way it would have been for longer.

This I thought, however, for a girl like myself can never tell where she will be, exactly, from one year to another. Besides I hate being bound down indefinitely to anyone, or anything. I do feel happy at the way things are shaping themselves for me, it's wonderful.

From my office (which is so important) I called up Fritz, and commended him for the whole afternoon. Instructed him to meet me at Dorry's studio and to arrive early and stay late.

It was then my sweet-sail duty to take leave of my pals on the "Leader," which I did. They were all so cordial and seemed genuinely sorry to have me leave, even for so short a time. It made me feel most important.

Got over to Dorry's at about three, and found her busy—doing nothing. She looked rather pale and was not at all her old self, which made me suspicious at once. One gets to know the earmarks of love after a while!

That wretched girl is the only one of all of us who has determined not to be laid—on at any price. She is bound to stand alone and not be led to the altar, what though both she and he are in love. Now I do feel sorry for her, for she is going to be a second Aunt Cecilia. Well Dorry is that kind of girl, and I don't suppose anything will ever change her. If Love count.

She is so self-sufficient she fairly makes me sick with envy! "Blinked to me as evenly as though she was not going through all the torments of the damned, and even broke into girlish laughter on one or two occasions. It was heart-breaking to see her, especially as she still had all the marks of recent tears round her pretty eyes. (This is each idiot's after-dill!)

She told me that she envies me my trip tremendously, that such a trip would be the very thing for her at this particular moment. Just as she was talking the telephone rang and she went over to answer it. I saw her face go quite pale when she heard the voice at the other end, but she never turned a hair. Simply said in a quiet voice that Miss Dorris Wilson was not at home, nor would be for several weeks, etc. It was mystifying in the extreme, until—

—Until that foolish girl rushed up to me, after hanging up the receiver, and said in a shaky voice, "I told to me, Lindsey dear; hold on to me now, tight as you can, for if you don't I'll take up that receiver and he won't have for India—ever!"

I knew then what it was all about.

Knowing my Dorry and her mother, I decided then and then to take things into my own hands, and after a few moments I discovered his name and profession (engineering); also that he is about to leave for foreign shores, broken-hearted. I then faked a terrible headache and asked Dorry for some powder, which she did not have, but offered to run out and fetch it. I begged her to do so, and as soon as she was safely gone I danced over to the receiver, took it down, and in a clear voice asked for Columbus (1920). When I heard a masculine voice on the other end I asked sweetly if that were Mr. Arthur Stanton, and followed, name by a quick sketch of Dorry, her red eyes and her deep dejection. I ended up with an earnest plea for Mr. Stanton to rush over here and knock the obstinate girl on the head, if necessary, for she was prepared to suffer rather than confess her love, and allow herself to be married! There was tremendous relief in Mr. Stanton's voice at my news, and at the end he actually laughed as he assured me that he had felt all along that that was just what Dorry needed, forced. My what a thrilling situation for Dorry, or any other girl. I did cry her as I hung up the receiver, and only just in time, for she appeared one second afterwards, bearing my medicine in her hand.

Twenty minutes afterwards, Brisky arrived and we had a reunion. And shortly after that, just as I, having snored for other regions, was

WHO'S WHO In The Days News

NATHAN I. MILLER

Nathan I. Miller, the choice of New York organization Republicans for governor of the Empire State, is a Remond lawyer whose career shows steady advancement in his chosen profession.

From the time he was admitted to the bar, in 1893, Miller became a close student of politics and affairs of government. His first excursion into the political arena came when he was elected school commissioner of Cortland county, N. Y., in 1894. After his reelection, in 1896 he refused a third term and devoted himself to a growing law practice. He was state comptroller in 1902-1903, during which time he received first-hand information about the financial affairs of his state. A short time after he became a supreme court justice and was later elevated to the post of associate judge of the court of appeals, the highest state tribunal.

Judge Miller was born at Solon, N. Y., in 1865, the son of a farmer. As a youth he attended Groton academy and Cortland normal school. After his graduation from the state academy in 1887 he taught school for three years and then took up the study of law.

His first excursion into the political arena came when he was elected school commissioner of Cortland county, N. Y., in 1894. After his reelection, in 1896 he refused a third term and devoted himself to a growing law practice. He was state comptroller in 1902-1903, during which time he received first-hand information about the financial affairs of his state. BILLY WHISKER

When Billy heard Hans say that he did not wait for any more, but raised his head to hold him back, he might as well have tried to hold the wind. Billy, feeling the tug at his reins, gave a jump that toppled Fritz over backwards out of the cart. He gave one more jump and landed with all his might and main against poor, round Hans, and as his enemy went down Billy jumped on him and ran up one side of him and down the other side. Poor Hans got up and clasped both hands on his stomach.

"A thousand lightnings yet again!" he exclaimed as he looked sorrowfully at his pain in the dust. Hans had been taught that time for Billy's mother; now Billy whistled and came back to give Hans one for himself, but this time Hans was too quick for him and dodged behind a tree so hard that it stung him, and before the very tempered goat could make up his mind what had happened to him, Caspar came running up and grabbed him by the horns. Billy could have jerked away from Caspar, but he felt that the boy was now the best friend he had, and he did not want to hurt him, so he let Caspar put him on his sleek sides and climb into the cart behind him.

Life's Common Things

The things of every day are all so sweet—
 The morning meadows wet with dew;
 The daisies of daisies in the noon; the lilac
 Of far-off hills where twilight shadows lie;
 The night, with all its tender mystery of sound
 And silence, and God's starry sky! Oh, life—the whole of life—is far too sweet.
 The things of every day are all so sweet.

The common things of life are all so dear—
 The waking in the warm half-gloom;
 To find again the old familiar room;
 The events and signs and sounds that never tire;
 The lonely work, the plans, the lift of baby's laugh;
 The cradle of the open fire;
 The waiting, then the footsteps coming near;
 The opening door, your handclasp and your kiss—
 Is Heaven not, after all, the Now and here?

The common things of life are all so dear.

That's Different

The case looked black against the prisoner, who was charged with loitering suspiciously at the railway station. Presently the magistrate said sternly: "This lady says you tried to speak to her at the railway station."

"It was a mistake," pleaded the man in the dock. "I was looking for my wife's young niece whom I've never seen but who had been described to me as a handsome young lady, with golden hair, well-cut features, fine complexion, perfect figure, beautifully dressed, and—"

With a charming blush the principal witness against him interrupted his flow of eloquence.

"I don't wish to prosecute the gentleman," she said to the magistrate. "Anyone might have made the same mistake."—Tit-Bits.

New-York - Day-By-Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The types to be seen at a public race represent the cast of social exclusiveness. Long-haired ladies, black and white, summer frocks, tilted hats, and haw-haw boys with walrus mustaches and dapper little wrist watch tines, bachelors and partially married men.

It seems to a casual observer that no man or woman may enter the upper social circles without having acquired efficiency in yawning. They yawn at the weather, the ocean and the high powered yachts. A yawn means "I've seen all this stuff before. Take it away!"—which even includes the death.

A good way to sneak through the barriers is to refer to Sir Thomas Linton as "Tommy." That means class. Snubbery fairly oozes from every pore. Mrs. Tumbleby-Tumbleby remarks that she has just bought six bulls' heads for the children. The little stars are so fresh in her wardrobe.

Van who has a furthest eye out for the tailor's collector comes back with some apology to the sun slips behind a cloud to smile. Then the stout nation with the map of the Amazon appliqued on her frock, with a slight laughter as she throws a shoe hurrying for a scandalous convention of a night's sojourn.

There is a kluge among the Wild Dances in the effort to recover the place in yachting circles when a lady loses a shoe. She demands that the fluster lass her. They blink up these slinky innovations right out of their own heads.

There isn't one who would deny owning a yacht. About one in every twenty does. But who is there to deny that one owns a yacht? And the names of the yachts. There's sense in those names boys. Among those I saw were Zeddie, Neptune, South Bronx, Marinas and Tuskegee. Smack of a spanking squall, tropical and what-not.

Every yacht deck is cluttered up with Japanese servants who know how to chill wine. The roll of the passengers is not always due to the wild waves. But it is great fun to watch the boats. They can half the world know little about the other half. I tried to appear yacht owning by wearing an anchor pin. But it didn't work. I could feel supercilious glances. They knew I simply did not belong. Although as a matter of fact I have a cousin who owns a pile of white flannel trousers.

Broadway footloose openly sold business on the streets these days. Well dressed young men who look like the booters in the pre-war dances approached you brazenly and inquired if they may supply your liquor needs for the evening. If your hip is carrying a light load you indicate your needs and wait up a side street for the booter. They even solicit over the telephone. An actor told me the other day of being called on the phone twice in one day by ambitious salesmen who quoted prices on eye, Scotch and Bourbon. The prices are declining, too. Canadian whiskey is reported to be selling at 25 a quart. Six of standard brands is procurable at 40 a quart. A few months ago the price was $50.

Living in Brooklyn produces strange results. A man ran up to a policeman during a lumber yard fire and pointed to the smoldering remains of his small frame house adjacent to the lumber yard and said: "And my wife was going to have a good dinner for me too."

"Well," said the cop, turning on his heel, "It's well cooked now, all right, all right."

Uni
 The train was pulling into the station, and as the passengers crowded to get off the hotel man walked up and down calling: "King George, sir? King George? Coming up to an old gentleman from the country, he said, while down calling: "King George, sir? King George, sir?"

"No, sir," replied the old man: "you're mistaken. I'm just plain Bill McCarthy."

Coal Fleet Passes

Three million bushels of "black diamonds," as common, ordinary coal has come to be known, passed down the Ohio river on the way to Cincinnati, Saturday.

Seven boats with 55 barges of West Virginia coal made up the mid-summer fleet.

The big fleet caused a great deal of comment from on-lookers, as it made an imposing sight as it filled the wide expanse of the Ohio. The coal piled along on the barge of an artificial wave that registered 1 1/2 feet and rising this morning. The wave was created by opening up river dams.

The Greenwood passed up Saturday morning for Pittsburgh from Cincinnati.

The Chris Green was up Saturday for Huntington.

Boys And Girls Live Stock Judging Contest

Every boy and girl in Scioto county will have the opportunity of winning a free trip to the State Fair this year by entering the live stock judging contest at the Lucasville Fair, Wednesday, August 11th.

Beef cattle, dairy cattle, draft horses and dogs will be judged as follows: Four animals will be put into the ring and each boy or girl placing them 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th, writing their reasons for placing. The placement and reasons will be taken into consideration by the judge. The public official who fails to enforce the law is an enemy both to the constitution and to the American principle of majority rule. It would seem unnecessary for any candidate for the presidency to say that he does NOT intend to violate his oath of office. Any one who is false to that oath is more unworthy than the law violator himself.

"Morals cannot easily be produced by statute," Governor Cox continued in passing to a plea against abuse of the writ of injunction.

Regarding woman suffrage, Governor Cox urged ratification of the proposed constitutional amendment, declaring women "are entitled to the privilege of voting as a matter of right, and because they will be helpful in maintaining wholesome and patriotic policy."

His opposition—candidate, platform, leaders and congressional record—were laid by Governor Cox in scathing terms throughout his long address. A "Senatorial oligarchy" led by Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, Governor Cox charged, selected Senator Harding to lead the Republicans and fastened "into the party platform the creed of bitterness and hate and the vacillating policy that possesses it." The Republican standard, generally, was scored by the governor as reactionary, and, on the league question, he said the party's candidate was bent on the irreconcilable injustice of Senator Johnson, of California. The Republican congress, the governor asserted, failed to pass a constructive law or to reduce war taxes.

Millions in campaign funds have been gathered for "the reactionary cause," the governor charged, depicting election of a new administration "under corrupt auspices" and demanding publicity for "the plain truth" regarding all contributory and disbursements. The Democrats, he added, would not attempt "to complete by dollars" what they had begun by "unlimited profligate expenditures—to confuse and lull."

Unfettered By Promises

Governor Cox said he took up the Democratic standard "a free man, unfettered by promises."

"We want a change," he said, "from the old world of yesterday where international intrigue made people mere pawns on the chess-board of war. We want a change from the old international world where the man who tolled was assured of a 'full dinner pail' as his reward for loyalty and a fuller life for all. The other leads to reaction, the rule of the few over the many and the restriction of the average man's choices to grow upward. But I have abiding faith that the pitfalls will be avoided and the right road chosen."

The leaders opposed to Democracy promise to put the country "back to normal." This can only mean the so-called normal of former reactionary administrations.

"Our view is toward the sunrise of tomorrow. The opposition stands in the shadow of the setting sun, looking backward at the old days of reaction."

Graceful Tribute To Wilson

A graceful tribute to President Wilson was paid by Governor Cox, when, during the Republican platform for the election of "a line that breathes, emotion of pride" in the nation's war achievements, he said that while soldiers fell in the trenches Mr. Wilson was broken in the enormous task of his office.

Plans Separate Peace

The Republican proposal for a separate peace, Governor Cox declared, would be the most disastrous event in civilization since the Russians made their separate peace with Germany. "Utter difficulties in the plan," Governor Cox said that if accomplished "no nation in good standing would have anything to do with either."

"This plan would not only be a piece of bungling diplomacy, but plain, unadmitted dishonesty, as well," he said, "involving against any scheme without associated powers."

"This act would either be regarded as an act of madness or attempted international blackmail," he added.

Discussing domestic questions, Governor Cox denounced "profligate" at

MEMORY OF MISS CLEO BARBER MADE GREEN

Had she lived, Miss Cleo Barber would have been fifteen years of age Thursday, August 5. As a memorial to their beloved schoolmate and classmate, a number of the girl friends of Miss Barber placed fresh flowers upon her grave in Greenwood cemetery.

The green mound was literally covered with gay flowers, symbolizing the never-fading spirit of youth, and although Cleo is gone, she is not forgotten. Her memory will always be kept green in the hearts of her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Winkler, 625 Third street, just as her grave is always kept beautiful with flowers. Bouquets and floral sprays were also sent by Mrs. Anna Henson, Mrs. Chris Blair, Misses Anna and Mollie Lloyd.

After Misses Alma Alford, Georgia Price, Audrey Wilson, Mabel Seelye, Mary Sloan, Esther Hansen, Irene Adams, Edith and Helen Kaps, and Genevieve Mann returned from the cemetery, Mrs. Winkler took them for an automobile ride. Later the young people of the party enjoyed a "movie."

McMurry, Who Lost Leg In Singular Accident Is Better

Mrs. Clarence McMurry, of Fishing Run, Indiana, is at the bedside of her husband, Clarence McMurry, at the Hempstead hospital, having arrived in Portsmouth, Friday afternoon.

McMurry, a workman on the government boat the "Cayuga," at Dan No. 22, near Vancuburg, who suffered the loss of his right leg below the knee at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, was reported to have had no change in his general condition. He lost a great deal of blood due to the length of time it took to bring him up from Vancuburg on the "Cayuga" to Portsmouth. The accident is not expected to be fatal unless blood poisoning sets in.

The riverman was helping to load the boat after finishing the day's work on the dam. He had thrown the rope around the post on the landing place, and after fastening it, turned around to allow the other portion of the boat to swing around to the landing place. He stepped into the loop of a 2 inch rope, which was being wound up by the winch. The rope gave a violent tug, throwing McMurry to the floor of the boat. Before help could reach him the boat swung to the landing, and the force of the pull cut his leg off, just below the knee. He was then rushed to the hospital.

Cox Champions Wilson League

It was obtained from Page One that was left open by Governor Cox, but he said that the Democratic platform plans "speaks in a plain resolution against anything that disturbs the vital principle of the League."

Stated Fidelity Squarely

No room for doubt was left as to the governor's position on the League as the government political battle ground. As on other subjects, he stated his position squarely.

"We are in a time which calls for straight thinking, straight talking and straight action," he said. "It is no time for waffling."

In position, the League question is the candidate's address and to it he de-
